FOR NATIONAL SECURITY—

American Air Power

BY ADMIRAL DEWITT C. RAMSEY,
U.S.N. (Ret.)

President, Aircraft Industries Association

EFFECTIVE team work and close coordination of defense activities carried on by the armed services and industry is of greater importance today than ever before. Since we Americans have never maintained large defense forces in time of peace, our plans for national defense have been based to a major extent upon this nation's great industrial capacity and the ability of industry to expand.

Admiral Ramsey

This has been brought out clearly in recent debates over the defense budget. The Administration and its supporters have affirmed that because of the need for economy, we must take the calculated risk of maintaining all three branches of our armed services at levels below those considered desirable by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. This risk is taken both because of the need for economy and also because of the belief that the country can build up its forces to the required levels "in time" should an emergency require.

Actually, the importance of industry in the national defense picture has been considerably increased by certain developments occurring since World War II. One of these consists of our obligations under the North Atlantic Treaty and the Mutual Defense Assistance Program. In World War I our allies produced much of the material we used and in World War II our nation gained a head start on the production task in advance of actual involvement owing largely to the orders placed here by the British and the French. Now the situation is reversed. Under MDAP we in this country are to constitute in effect the industrial arsenal before any fighting begins.

We thus may face a material production problem in the event of emergency much greater than that which we were confronted in either World War I or World War II. Moreover we must assume the burden of expanding our production immediately without any hope of the substantial assistance received from our allies in World War I or World War II. In addition, virtually all of the material and equipment used by the armed forces has become immeasurably more complicated and more difficult to produce than was the case even in World War II.

Senate to Restudy Ship Authorizations

The Senate Committee on Armed Services this week reported favorably on the House-passed bill authorizing the construction of modern naval vessels.

However, in doing so the Committee provided that the tonnage authorized therein shall be charged against previously enacted authorizations. Furthermore, the Committee directed the Navy Department to make a complete study of existing tonnage authorizations and report to Congress by the first of next year. "When this report is received," the Committee stated, "the Congress will determine how much of this existing authorization should be revoked."

The fact that the Committee put upon the Navy Department the task of finding out how much shipbuilding authorization remains on the books reveals the involved state of this intricate subject. For example, it is understood that some unused authorization remains from 1934 when the Vinson-Trammell Act was passed to give the Navy authority to build up to London Treaty strength. (It was stated unofficially at the Navy Department that there is accumulated authorizations for about 1,170,000 tons of naval vessels, partly as a result of unused wartime authorizations, and partly as a result of tonnage which has accrued as vessels become overage.) Of course, none of these authorizations mean a thing unless appropriations are made to put them into effect.

The present bill is authority for the Navy's program designed to begin in the fiscal year 1952, for which initial appropriations will be sought in that year. That program is as follows:

	Approximate Tonnage	Estimated cost in millions
New Construction
(a) Combatant types:
Submarines:
1 nuclear-powered submarine	2,500	$ 40.0
1 coastal type submarine	250	3.0

Graduate As Air Officers

Commencement exercises were held 23 June at Lackland AFB, Tex., for 140 graduates of the Air Force Officer Candidate School. Thirteen of the graduates were WAFS.

Records indicate that 49 per cent of the class are college graduates with the average age of the candidates, 24 years 1.6 months. The average total military service of members in the class is 33.46 months. From the total of 175 candidates originally stating out with the class, 90 came direct from civilian life and 85 from the Services.

Diplomas a Distinguished Graduates were presented to 15 and loving cups as individual trophies for outstanding records went to three new second lieutenants. Receiving the WAF Achievement Award was Srah W. Hawkins; Athletic Award winner was William H. Moorman; (Please turn to Page 1207)

Clothing Allowance System

Effective today, 1 July, all enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps will be placed on a cash allowance system for clothing.

Because of the widespread interest in the new system—expected to provide savings for both military personnel and the Department of Defense—THE JOURNAL publishes herewith the complete text of the official announcement concerning the new system:

A uniform method of providing clothing for regular enlist personnel through cash allowances will be put into effect by the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps on 1 July, 1950. The system will not cover enlisted personnel in the reserve components unless in an active duty status for a period of more than six months.

The new system, under which enlisted men and women will be given cash sums with which to buy clothing, has two major advantages over previous systems. It gives enlisted personnel an incentive to make more economical use of clothing inasmuch as the saving accrues to the individual. It also is expected to materially reduce administrative costs by elimination of overhead created by maintaining completely separate bookkeeping records for each individual.

As set up under regulations approved by Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson and effective 1 July, 1950, the new clothing and clothing allowance system provides:

1. An initial allowance against which a recruit will draw clothing during recruit training or the first four months of active service, whichever is longer, with any remaining balance received in cash at the end of this period (including personnel who reenlist after 90 days from last date of discharge).

Plus basic maintenance allowance payable monthly in cash, beginning with the sixth month and continuing for the remainder of the first three years of active service.

2. Personnel enlisting within 90 days of last day of discharge and those serving more than a three-year enlistment will receive a standard maintenance allowance payable monthly in cash, beginning with the first month of four-year and continuing for the remainder of active service.

This standard maintenance allowance paid will be more in the basic allowance which is designed to replace only those items of (Please turn to Page 1185)

U. S. Forces in Action Against Korean Reds

Elements of the U. S. Air Force and the U. S. Navy are now in combat in Korea and Korean waters against Red invaders from North Korea.

It was announced yesterday, 30 June, that the President had authorized the use of certain supporting U. S. Army troops in the Korean operations and to bomb invasion bases north of the 38th parallel. A small field headquarters under Brig. Gen. John H. Church, USA, had already been set up by the Americans in Korea.

There have been some American casualties—killed, wounded and missing—apparently including Air Force personnel and a few members of the military mission to Korea.

Northern Korean invaders struck last Sunday, 25 June, and after a rapid advance in three days had captured Seoul, the capital of the Korean republic, Kimpo Airfield near Seoul, and most of the territory of Korea north of the Han River, which flows generally from east to west, about forty miles south of the border.

Troops of the Korean republic, badly shaken and pushed back by the force of the initial assault, rallied south of the Han River, and recaptured the Kimpo Airfield, after it had been blasted by heavy bombs from American B-29 planes.

American air units, hampered somewhat by adverse weather, have shot down several North Korean fighter planes, knocked out a number of tanks and trucks, and attacked rail and other installations held by the invaders.

American Naval vessels are reported to have bombarded enemy shore positions along the coast. By Presidential directive, operations of American Naval units are restricted to the territory of the Korean peninsula and adjacent waters south of the 38th parallel of latitude.

The operations of American forces in Korea are under the supreme command of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, Far Eastern Commander. General MacArthur visited the battle front on Thursday. After a study of the situation he announced yesterday, 30 June, that he was directing the Air Force to bomb the Communist Korean air and invasion bases north of the 38th parallel.

In participating in the hostilities in Korea, the United States is acting pursuant to a resolution of the Security Council of the United Nations which called upon member nations to assist Korea in the expulsion of the invaders. Great Britain has announced that units of the British Navy will report to General MacArthur in support of current operations, and several other nations, including France, Holland and New Zealand, have proffered their assistance.

In addition to the action with respect to Korea, the President directed the Seventh Fleet, under the operational control of General MacArthur, to prevent a Red invasion of Formosa, and to halt any (Please turn to Next Page) attacks that may be projected by the nationalists on Formosa against the Chinese mainland. Military assistance by the United States to Indo-China and the Philippines will be accelerated.

Hostilities broke out early Sunday morning, 25 June, when, without warning, a force of Russian-trained Communist troops from North Korea, variously estimated at from 30,000 to 70,000, with tanks and aircraft, suddenly invaded the republic of Korea.

At the request of the United States, a special meeting of the Security Council of the United Nations on Sunday adopted a resolution directing the invaders to withdraw to previously occupied positions north of the 38th parallel of latitude.

Russia refused to attend the meeting and branded the action as illegal because of the participation of the Chinese nationalist delegate. The vote for the resolution was 9 to 0, with the Yugoslav delegate refraining from voting.

The order of the United Nations was ignored by the invading Communists, whereupon President Truman in a striking declaration on Tuesday, 27 June, issued a series of crisp orders directing the Navy and Air Force to furnish support and cover for Korean troops fighting to repel the invaders.

Seventh Fleet Ordered

The Seventh Fleet was ordered to prevent a Red invasion of Formosa and the Chinese nationalists from attacking the Asiatic mainland from Formosa. The President also announced that military aid for French Asiatic protectorates and the associated states of Indo-China would be accelerated, and that a military mission would be sent to Southeast Asia. Red revolutionary activity in that area, with support of the Communist regime of China, has occasioned apprehension.

American troops in the Philippines will be immediately strengthened, and the Philippine government will be given additional military aid. This assistance is needed not only for protection against possible invasion, but also for internal security, particularly in the suppression of Communist-supported Huk rebels.

A few hours after the President's announcement the policy of active military aid for Korea was approved by the Security Council of the United Nations by a vote of 7 to 1, with Russia absent, Yugoslavia opposed, and Egypt and India abstaining.

General MacArthur was informed late Monday of the President's decision and took immediate steps to carry out the broad directive. The Seventh Fleet passed at once to the operational control of General MacArthur, and came under the immediate command of Vice Adm. Charles T. Joy, USN, commander of the U. S. Naval Forces in the Far East.

General Church was sent by General MacArthur to Korea to serve as senior adviser of the Korean army. General Church was assistant commander of the 84th Division in World War II. His nomination for promotion to major general is now before the Senate. Some 500 American Service personnel are assigned to units of the Korean army as technical advisers.

FEAF in Action

The Far East Air Force, under the command of Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, USAF, immediately dispatched fighter and bomber planes to Korea, and, despite particularly adverse weather conditions, were in action on Wednesday against enemy aircraft, tanks and troop columns. For the present at least there will be no active participation in the fighting by American ground troops. However, a Signal Corps detachment has been sent to Korea to set up military communication facilities, which have heretofore been practically non-existent.

An early task of the Far Eastern Command was the evacuation of American women and children and certain other civilians from the combat area. This was accomplished both by air and by sea, with exceptional efficiency. Five Russian-built Yak fighters of the North Korean forces which attempted to interfere with the evacuation were shot down by American fighter planes.

Subsequently American aircraft shot down several more enemy planes, and knocked out a number of tanks and trucks. Heavy weather, poor visibility and difficulty in distinguishing between friendly and enemy troops in the fluid battle area interfered considerably with early air operations.

The North Korean invasion met with considerable initial success. A strong assault force, in two quick thrusts down two road systems, converged on Seoul, the capital, from the north. The columns were preceded by a heavy concentration of tanks and accompanied by attack artillery. Advance elements reached Seoul on Monday and the city was captured on Wednesday.

Apparently in the main effort there were three divisions, of about 10,000 men each, and a total of about 100 light and medium tanks. The surprise was complete and little effective resistance was encountered.

Two South Korean divisions hastily thrown into the battle were unable to stop the invaders. The South Korean armament was only divisional equipment of a type designed for internal and border security. The defenders were handicapped by lack of tanks, medium and heavy artillery, and aircraft.

Landings on Eastern Shore

Small numbers of North Korean troops landed from small water craft at four points on the eastern shore of the Korean peninsula. In all about 2,700 men are believed to have participated in these relatively minor operations, which apparently had no appreciable effect on the principal conflict. American Naval patrols will prevent a repetition of such landings.

After three days of fighting, North Korean forces appeared to have captured most of the territory north of the Han River, which flows generally westward about 40 miles south of the northern border, and passes through the city of Seoul.

South of this river basin the terrain of the Korean peninsula becomes much more rugged and offers excellent opportunities for defense. Presumably the invaders will find the resistance much tougher if they try to penetrate deeper to the south, particularly since the defenders now have adequate air cover.

It is estimated that the invading force has a maximum of 150 aircraft, mostly Russian-type Yak fighters, definitely inferior in numbers and performance to the planes of the American Far East Air Force, which has at least 500 available for immediate service in combat.

Russian Tanks

The North Korean tanks used in the invasion are largely of Russian make, mostly T-34s and T-70s. The T-34 is of 35 tons and mounts either a 76mm or an 88mm gun. The T-70 is a small 12-ton tank with light weapons. The South Koreans have few, if any, tanks.

Naval vessels of North Korea are light craft and fishing boats. It is reported, without confirmation, that a Russian-type destroyer participated in one of the amphibious operations. The Korean republic has a few light vessels suitable only for river and coastal service. The American Naval Forces in the Far East dominate the sea in that area. In addition the British government has directed that its naval craft in Japanese waters be made available to the United States.

Despite initial setbacks the morale of the forces of the Korean republic is reported to be excellent and the announcement of active American assistance has greatly elevated the esprit of the troops. American planes have dropped 200,000 leaflets to the Korean troops and civilians, announcing American aid. Japanese newspapers with articles strongly supporting the American action have also been dropped in the beleaguered areas of the republic as a means of bolstering the morale.

There are no reports of sabotage, subversive action or guerrilla activity anywhere in South Korea, which is believed to be indicative of general support of the government in the current crisis. Communications are improving and the defense is being reorganized after reeling under the impact of the initial assault. There are no indications that the North Koreans have as yet received reinforcements either from Russia or Red China. The strength of the South Korean Army is about 100,000 and that of the invaders approximately the same.

Korea covers an area of 85,246 square miles with an estimated population of 30,000,000. The industrial area is in the north, with the tillable land in the valleys of the rugged south supporting an almost exclusively industrial population.

Participants

In implementing the President's directive, under command of General MacArthur, Admiral Joy and General Stratemeyer, the following military officers and Army, Navy and Air Force elements figured in developments this week.

Army

The strength of the Army in the Far East Command, under Lt. Gen. Walton Walker, was reported by the Department of Defense to be 123,500, including four divisions as follows:

1st Cavalry Division (Infantry), under command of Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay.

7th Infantry Division, whose commanding general is Maj. Gen. David G. Barr.

24th Infantry Division, under Maj. Gen. William F. Dean.

25th Infantry Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. William B. Kean.

There were no Army troops in Korea when the attack was launched, except for the Korea Military Advisory Group, consisting of about 500 persons.

In September of 1945, it is recalled, 72,000 American troops, under command of Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, presently commander of the VI Corps at Ft. Bragg, N. C., who last week was nominated to succeed Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem as Commanding General of the Third Army upon the latter's retirement on 31 Aug., landed in Korea as the XXIV Corps.

After the Republic of Korea, based on free elections in South Korea was established in August, 1948, the military government, which had functioned the previous year in advisory capacity, ceased operation. Withdrawal of U. S. troops was completed in January 1949.

The acting chief of the Advisory Group at the outbreak of hostilities was Col. W. H. S. Wright, USA, who was in Tokyo at the time the attack was launched. He returned to Korea early Monday in an unescorted U. S. Navy plane after an earlier effort to reach Korea was thwarted when North Korean Yak planes bombed and strafed Kimp airfield near Seoul on Sunday. Lt. Col. W. J. Mahoney is vice chief of the Advisory Group.

Until recently, Brig. Gen. William L. Roberts was commanding officer of the Advisory Group. He will be retired in the near future. He described the South Korean Army as the best fighting force on the Asiatic Continent. The South Korean Army, said General Roberts in Tokyo, consists of eight divisions of three regiments each plus a cavalry regiment to which is attached an extra infantry battalion. Also, he said, there are three battalions of North Korean deserters who have been retrained. The South Korean force was said to have six artillery battalions equipped with 105s. Air power was said initially to include only 20 AT-6's.

Preparing to leave the United States for duty as the new Chief of the U. S. Military Advisory Group, Maj. Gen. Frank A. Keating, USA, was quoted this week as declaring the North Korea attack to resemble a "very small Pearl Harbor."

In Korea, the Advisory Group has been conducting during recent months a vigorous training program for native troops in a project that has been called "The Fort Benning of Korea."

One Army officer in this Advisory Group, whose name was reported this week in dispatches from Korea, is Maj. J. W. Billelo, senior adviser to the South Korean Seventh Division.

Navy

Placed under operational command of General MacArthur was the U. S. Naval Forces, Far East, under Vice Adm. Charles T. Joy, USN, to which was added the U. S. Seventh Fleet, commanded by Vice Adm. Arthur D. Struble.

U. S. Naval Forces Far East comprises the light cruiser USS Juneau, which carries the flag of Rear Adm. John N. Higgins, USN, Commander, Cruiser Division Five, the destroyers USS De Haven, USS Mansfield, USS Collett and USS Lyman K. Swenson, all based in Japan.

The Seventh Fleet, which operates from the Philippines—Guam Area, includes the 27,100-ton Essex class carrier USS Valley Forge, flagship of Rear Adm. John M. Hoskins, USN, Commander, Carrier Division Three. Its other ships are the heavy cruiser USS Rochester; destroyers USS Maddox, USS Brush, USS Taussig, USS Samuel N. Moore, USS Eversole and USS Shelton; the escorted destroyers USS Fletcher and USS Radford; the submarines USS Remora, USS Segundo, USS Catfish and USS Cabezon; the small seaplane tender Suisun; fleet oiler USS Navasota; high speed transport USS Wantuck; destroyer tender USS Piedmont; store ship USS Karis; submarine rescue vessel USS Greenleaf and fleet tug USS Mataco.

At Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Commander of the Pacific Fleet, announced 27 June that a task force consisting of the 27,000-ton carrier USS Philippine Sea, two cruisers and a destroyer squadron was being organized on the West Coast for movement to Hawaii.

And in Washington, it was stated that the carrier USS Boxer, recently returned from the Far East for overhaul, would be kept in operating condition pending developments in the Far East.

The Navy Department said this week that the commanding officers of the U. S. Seventh Fleet ships are:

USS Valley Forge Capt Lester K. Rice
USS Rochester Capt E. L. Woodard
USS Remora Lt Cdr L. V. Young
USS Segundo Lt Cdr J. H. Bowell

Air Force

Included in the Far East Air Forces, embracing Japan, Okinawa, Guam and the Philippines, are one medium group of B-29 bombers, five fighter groups, one all-weather fighter group of F-82 Twin Mustangs, two B-26 light bomb squadrons, one C-54 troop carrier group and several weather reconnaissance, tactical reconnaissance squadrons and a few air rescue flights.

Lt. Gen. George Stratemeyer is Commanding General of FEAF.

Among the names of Air Force personnel reported in dispatches from the Far East this week were these:

Maj. A. E. Shook, pilot, and Lt. Leslie B. Williams, navigator, reported that their plane, a B-26, had knocked out six heavy Russian-made tanks on a single mission.

1st Lt. Robert Wayne, a fighter pilot, is credited with having shot down two Yak fighters.

Capt. Ray Schillereff and his wingman, 1st Lt. Robert H. Dewald, also were said to have accounted for a yak fighter.

Lt. Monte Ballew was the first American pilot forced down by enemy action in the Korean war. His B-26 made a forced landing in South Korea. Other crew members were Capt. Hammon H. Bittman and Sgt. Dewey Halcomb. Their plane was strafed after its forced landing.

President's Korea Statement

The following is the text of President Truman's announcement on 27 June in which the Air and Sea Forces were ordered to give the Korean government troop cover and support:

In Korea the government forces, which were armed to prevent border raids and to preserve internal security, were attacked by invading forces from North Korea. The Security Council of the United Nations called upon the invading troops to cease hostilities and to withdraw to the thirty-eighth parallel.

This they have not done, but on the contrary have pressed the attack. The Security Council called upon all members of the United Nations to render every assistance to the United Nations in the execution of this resolution. In these circumstances I have ordered United States Air and Sea Forces to give the Korean government troops cover and support.

The attack upon Korea makes it plain beyond all doubt that communism has passed beyond the use of subversion to conquer independent nations and will now use armed invasion and war. It has defied the orders of the Security Council of the United Nations to preserve international peace and security. In these circumstances the occupation of Formosa by Communist forces would be a direct threat to the security of the Pacific area and to United States forces performing their lawful and necessary functions in that area.

Accordingly I have ordered the Seventh Fleet to prevent any attack on Formosa. As a corollary to this action I am calling upon the Chinese government on Formosa to cease all air and sea operations against the mainland. The Seventh Fleet will see that this is done. The determination of the future status of Formosa must await the restoration of security in the Pacific. A peace settlement with Japan, or consideration by the United Nations.

I have also directed that United States forces in the Philippines be strengthened and that military assistance to the Philippine government be accelerated.

I have similarly directed acceleration in the furnishing of military assistance to the forces of France and the associated states in Indo-China and the dispatch of a military mission to provide close working relations with those forces.

I know that all members of the United Nations will consider carefully the consequences of this latest aggression in Korea in defiance of the charter of the United Nations. A return to the rule of force in international affairs would have far reaching effects. The United States will continue to uphold the rule of law.

I have instructed Ambassador (Warren R.) Austin, as the representative of the United States to the Security Council, to report these steps to the council.

Security for Bases

The Department of Defense announced 27 June that the Armed Services, on the authorization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, have transmitted instructions to all of their major commands permitting individual base commanders to place their respective bases or installations on a "restricted" basis if such action is deemed necessary.

Instructions cabled to the world-wide elements of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps stated that the authorization would permit any base commanders to set up security measures that would best safe-guard their installations. This action can mean that visitors to a base or base personnel would have to show passes, or base commanders would impose restrictions which may bar visitors.

The directives to the Services emphasized that this was merely a precautionary measure.

Army and AF Interns

Fifty-four Army and Air Force interns, all first lieutenants, arrived at the Army Medical Center, Monday, 26 June, for their one year rotating internships at Walter Reed General Hospital. Col. Walter H. Moursund, director of graduate education at the hospital, will be in charge of the one year course.

The Army interns, whose duties commence 1 July, are:

1st Lieutenants, Asdrubal Arzola, Timothy G. Barila, Ralph M. Beddow, Robert T. Blair, Robert L. Bosman, William A. Boyson, Roswell S. Cheeves, Lyon H. Earle, Jr., Kent Ellis, John Esau, Charles D. Army Bill Signed

Army officials at the Pentagon late this week were preparing the draft of regulations implementing the Army Reorganization Act, signed into law by President Truman on 28 June.

Provisions of the bill become applicable immediately, with the sole exception of a stipulation which limits to four years the tour of duty in Washington—this becomes effective one year hence. However, a saving clause will retain the status quo in Army organization until necessary directives are promulgated by the Secretary of the Army.

Because of the complexity of these pertinent regulations, some days likely will be required before the new law is implemented throughout the Army.

Among its notable features is the abolition of the Cavalry and the creation of a new branch, called Armor. (In Washington this week, Maj. Gen. Floyd Parks, USA, Chief of Information, said no decision had been made as yet as to whether the 1st Cavalry Division (Infantry) would retain the "Cavalry" designation in its name. General Parks expressed the hope that this would be done.)

In addition to eliminating the Cavalry, the new law consolidates the Field Artillery and Coast Artillery into the Artillery. Statutory recognition is given to the Transportation Corps and the Military Police Corps.

The basic branches of the Army will be as follows: Infantry, Armor, Artillery, Corps of Engineers, Signal Corps, Adjutant General's Corps, Quartermaster Corps, Finance Corps, Ordnance Corps, Chemical Corps, Transportation Corps, Military Police Corps and "such other basic branches as the Secretary of the Army deems to be necessary."

The Army originally sought authority for the Secretary of the Army to consolidate or abolish existing branches, as well as power to establish new branches. Congress held that the Secretary should not have such sweeping authority and stipulated that branches could not be discontinued or consolidated except in national emergency.

Although the Department of the Army asked that no such restriction be imposed, Congress set as 3000 the number of officers who may be on duty in Washington and a limit of 1000 General Staff officers, except in an emergency or when it is essential to the national interest to exceed these limits.

After a maximum four-year tour in Washington, an officer will have to serve in the field at least two years before he may be returned to service in the Capital. Exceptions may be made only on a specific finding of national necessity in each case.

The Army is limited by the Reorganization Act to three Deputy Chiefs of Staff and five Assistant Chiefs of Staff. Here again Congress declined to permit the Army the broadest possible authority.

Throughout the hearings, notably in the House Armed Services Committee, action was taken repeatedly to restrict the powers of the Secretary of the Army. The Senate concurred to a greater degree in the Army desires, but a Conference Committee accepted a large part of the restrictions voted by the House and subsequently incorporated in the final version of the measure.

Military Food Purchases

Non-perishable foods purchased by the Army Quartermaster Corps for supply to the Army, Navy, or Air Force will in the future be procured either under federal or military specifications, the Department of Defense announced this week.

Conversion of non-perishable food items to federal or military specifications is in keeping with a unification policy directed by the Munitions Board. Under this program, all materials purchased by every branch and service of the military establishment will eventually be placed under one or the other of these two specification series. This means gradual elimination of Army, Navy, and Air Force specifications, as well as tentative specifications previously prepared by any one of the military technical services.

Navy Confirmations

The Senate on 23 June confirmed Navy nominations submitted on 12 June and listed on page 1123 of the 17 June issue of the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL.

President Speaks to ROA

President Truman and Defense Secretary Louis Johnson were the main speakers at the annual convention of the Reserve Officers Association in Washington, D. C. this week.

Prior to the President's remarks, Comdr. John P. Bracken, ROA President, introduced a resolution indorsing Mr. Truman's action in the Korean situation, and the convention members gave the President a rousing ovation.

Mr. Truman spoke briefly on the "serious situation" in Korea and said "We hope we face it in the cause of peace."

Earlier, Secretary Johnson called upon members of the Association to "do what you can to keep alive the spirit of service among all of our young men—veterans those who are becoming of age now, and encourage them to become active participants in our National Defense program."

Secretary Johnson told of "ever growing needs for the capable enlisted men who make the planes fly, the ships sail and the guns roll." He said the ranks of the Reserves, except for the National Guard, are not up to strength.

"The support of the Reserve Officers Association as an organization and of its members as individuals, not only for unification but for the whole program of National Defense," said Secretary Johnson, "has contributed appreciably to our progress of the past year." He cited as an example the moving of Security Week, sponsored by the ROA, from February to May to coincide with Armed Forces Day.

Concluding his address, Mr. Johnson said that "National Defense is stronger today than ever before in our peacetime history," and he said that next year "we will get even more by way of preparedness out of every dollar appropriated than we are getting now."

Commander Bracken told the convention members that the Korean situation emphasized more than ever before to the need for a strong reserve force. Pointing out that the reserves constituted a ratio of 20 to one in the last war, he said that they should be in top condition since "there may not be time to get men ready in the next war." He urged increased interest and appropriations for the Reserves.

At a meeting of the Air Force section of the Association, several reserve officers criticized Air Force officials for failing to provide reserves with adequate training and facilities. Brig. Gen. Thomas O. Hardin, Chief of the Air Force Reserve Section, and Maj. Gen. Earl Hoag, special assistant to the Air Force Chief of Staff, declared that the present program was as good as possible in view of limited funds.

Col. Charles W. Skeele, air vice president of the ROA delivered an annual report in which he said that Reserve funds approved by Congress have been appropriated by the services "for uses as they saw fit." He said the Reserves "have constantly had to fight factions in the military establishment at very high levels who are very frank in saying they have little or no use for the Reserves."

The National Vice President for Army Affairs, Col. John E. Colman, claimed that "maximum age-in-grade restrictions" had reduced the ranks of the reserves.

Speakers at the four-day session, which opened on 28 June and will close today, discussed Reserve problems in all of the services. Among the speakers on the second day were Navy Capt. Arleigh A. Burke, recently nominated for flag rank, who addressed a session of the Navy group, and Brig. Gen. J. Lafeton Whitney, national president of the Air Reserve Association, who was the main speaker before the Air Force panel.

Vice Adm. Lynde D. McCormick, Vice Chief of Naval Operations, and Rear Adm. Ralph S. Riggs, Assistant Chief of Naval Operations for the Naval Reserve, were also among the speakers who addressed the convention. Admiral Riggs told the group that the United States has the strongest naval reserve forces of any nation.

NATIONAL GUARD ENLISTED MEN

Whereas only 4.3 per cent of the enlisted personnel of the National Guard are over 35 years of age, 63.4 per cent are between the ages of 17 and 20.

Gen. Wolfe Retires

Brig. Gen. Henry C. Wolfe, CE, USA, was retired recently.

At the start of World War II as a lieutenant colonel he was assigned to the Engineer Amphibian Command and was subsequently given command of the 1st Engineer Special Brigade which he took to Africa. He also served as Commanding General of the Invasion Training Center in North Africa and Italy and as Chief Engineer, 6th Army Group in France and Germany. Subsequent to World War II, General Wolfe served as Director, Planning Division, Army Service Forces and Chief, Engineer Division, Office of the Chief of Engineers. Since June 1948 General Wolfe served as District Engineer, Washington District, the post from which he is retiring.

Upon retirement General Wolfe plans to join the organization of Mills, Pettigord, and Associates.

Col. Steger Awarded Degree

Col. Bryon L. Steger, Assistant Chief of the Education and Training Division, Army Surgeon General's Office, recently was awarded the degree of doctor of public health at Johns Hopkins University.

Okinawa Housing Contracts

Three Japanese firms have been awarded contracts for the construction of 490 three-bedroom houses on Okinawa, it was announced by Maj. Gen. James G. Christiansen, Chief of Engineers, Far East Command.

It is expected that the first 150 houses will be finished by Christmas and the remainder early in 1951. Additional houses have been authorized to be built in 1951 but bids for them have not yet been called for.

The houses will be for officers, the first three non-commissioned grades, and civilians. They will be constructed of concrete block with concrete slab roofs insulated with fiber glass, and asphalt tile flooring.

The overall dimensions of 48 by 27 feet will include three bedrooms, combination living room-dining room, utility room, kitchen and bathroom. A service porch at the back of the house is also provided.

The houses will be anchored with steel rods and reinforced to withstand steady winds up to 120 miles per hour or gusts of greater velocity. Windows will be protected by typhoon shutters.

All necessary utilities and appliances including stove, water heater and refrigerator (all electric) will be provided. Oil unit space heaters will be used for general heating.

Army Confirmations

The Senate on 23 June confirmed the Army nominations submitted on 9 June as found on page 1122 of the 17 June issue of the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL.

Advanced Finance Course

The third class of the Finance Officer Advanced Course was graduated from the Army Finance School 16 June, it was announced by Brig. Gen. Emmett J. Bean, USA, Commanding General of the Army Finance Center and Commandant of the Army Finance School. The class had been in session since 6 Sept., 1949.

Maj. Gen. Eugene M. Foster, USA, the Army Chief of Finance, attended the ceremonies and addressed the graduating class. Dr. Leslie J. Buchan, Dean of the School of Business and Public Administration and Acting Dean of Faculties at Washington University, St. Louis, also addressed the class and spoke on "Transferring Your Knowledge."

The course which these officers completed consisted of training in the economic sciences, public administration and management. It was designed to develop men capable of assuming top management positions in the Finance Department and Department of the Army. In addition to the regular staff instructors at the Army Finance School, students were afforded the opportunity of listening to instructional talks given by leading business executives in the St. Louis area, such as the Messrs. Frank Carr, Comptroller, Mallinckrodt Chemical Works; D. M. Sheehan, Vice-President and Comptroller, Monsanto Chemical Company; C. J. Falkenrath, Assistant Comptroller, Wagner Electric Company; C. N. Herman, Comptroller-Treasurer, the Dazey Corporation; Reid McCrum, Chief Cost Accountant, Anheuser-Busch, Incorporated; A. A. Schweighauser, Manager, Industrial Relations, Laclede Steel Corporation, Alton, Ill.; A. C. Baudek, Personnel Relations Manager, McDonnell Aircraft Corporation; Lloyd Weber, Business Representative, International Association of Machinists, and many others.

During the course, tours were made of leading business and industrial establishments in the Greater St. Louis area.

The twenty-seven students, officers of the United States Army, Air Force and Navy, Philippine Army, and Canadian Army, are:

Navy, Comdr. Norbert C. Brady; Army, Col. Emroy E. Feind, Wayne B. Gardner, Elmer P. Hardenbergh, Clayton F. Fowler; Lt. Col. Donald M. Forney, Alwyn V. Larkin, Gardner W. Porter, Carter O. Price, Homer R. Wallar; Maj. Richard E. Burch, Colven E. Caudell, Sherburne J. Heliker, Lee V. Holly; Amos E. LaFaver, Joseph R. Lamar, Jeremiah B. Monk, Jr., Richard B. Thrift, Gerald F. True; Capt. Edward E. Benton, Morton S. Coe, Frederick C. Uhler, Dudley C. Simpson; 1st Lts. Fred P. Hardy, Frank H. Tryon; Philippine Army, Lt. Col. Ananias Y. Rosal; Canadian Army, Maj. G. W. Swartzon.

Commands 3d Inf. Div.

Maj. Gen. Percy W. Clarkson, who has commanded the 3d Infantry Division, Ft. Benning, Ga., since March 1947, has been ordered to duty with the U. S. Army, Pacific, with headquarters at Ft. Shafter, Hawaii, and will be succeeded by Brig. Gen. Robert H. Soule, who has been nominated for two-star rank.

Clothing Allowance System

clothing which wear out in the first three years of active service.

Special supplementary clothing allowances are provided for enlisted personnel who are assigned to duties which require special or additional items of clothing; i.e., enlisted personnel assigned to duties with the Military Police, U. S. Navy Band, Recruiting Service, Ceremonial Detachment, etc., or undergoing training leading to a commission.

The regulation provides that the initial clothing monetary allowance, against which recruits will draw clothing, shall be equal to the value (cost price as determined by each Service) of the items of individual clothing and the quantities thereof prescribed by the Secretary of each Service as initial requirements for enlisted personnel. Enlisted personnel will become entitled to this initial allowance under the following circumstances:

1. Upon first enlistment in the United States Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Air Force, or upon reenlistment in the same branch of the regular Service subsequent to expiration of three months from date of last discharge.

2. Upon reenlistment in another Service than that from which last discharged.

3. Enlisted personnel of the Civilian Components upon first reporting for or upon recall to active duty or active duty for training for a period in excess of six months subsequent to expiration of three months from date of last release from active duty, but only one such entitlement shall accrue during any period of four consecutive years.

4. Retired enlisted personnel (including for this purpose members of the Fleet Reserve and the Fleet Reserve Marine Corps Reserve) recalled to active duty subsequent to expiration of three months from date of last release from active duty or date of retirement, but only one such entitlement shall accrue during any period of four consecutive years.

5. Enlisted personnel of the Navy or Marine Corps serving as commissioned officers or warrant officers under temporary appointments upon reverting therefrom to serve on active duty in an enlisted status.

At present and since 1 July, 1949, the Armed Services have been operating an interim system which provides for the Navy and the Marine Corps an initial allowance for new recruits and a maintenance allowance for all enlisted personnel paid quarterly in cash, beginning with the fourth quarter of active service and continuing for the remainder of active service; and for the Army and the Air Force credit allowances providing an initial issue, maintenance credits consisting of a first year credit and a standard credit annually after the first year, and re-enlistment credits. The credit allowances are entered on unit books for each individual against which clothing drawn is charged. An individual's account is settled at the end of his enlistment.

Previous to 1 July, 1949, the Army, Air Force and Marine Corps were on an issue-in-kind system.

Direct comparison between Fiscal Year 1951 and Fiscal Year 1950 allowances is difficult because of differences in the two systems and several personal items which are provided for under the 1951 allowances which were not included in the 1950 allowances. In addition a more equitable and uniform basis for arriving at allowances is provided under the new system.

For information purposes, the allowances approved for fiscal year 1951 under the new system, together with the allowances in effect in fiscal year 1950, are indicated in the following table:

Clothing Allowances, FY 1951 With FY 1950 Comparison

	FY 1950		FY 1951
	Men	Women	Men	Women
Army	173.12*	197.17	184.96	252.74
Navy	145.70	264.20	151.55	252.10
Marines	189.77	291.65	203.79	248.85
Air Force	171.64*	199.87	210.65	244.28

*Army and Air Force had initial issue rather than monetary allowance in FY 1950. Amount shown is value of initial issue.

Basic Maintenance Allowance (Monthly, Beginning with Seventh Month and Continuing for Remainder of First Three Years)

	FY 1950 Equivalent*		FY 1951
	Men	Women	Men	Women
Army	4.08	5.04	4.20	4.50

A valuable package for you

Sometimes you may think of the Telephone Company simply as the organization that provides you with good telephone service at low cost.

That, of course, is its most important job.

But its value to the community and to you personally goes far beyond the completing of a call. Wrapped up in the words "Telephone Company" are jobs and wages and local purchases, as well as telephone service.

The Bell System employs over 550,000 men and women and its payroll is above $2,000,000,000 annually. The wages spent by telephone employees create jobs and wages for people in many other lines. So do the large purchases by Bell Telephone Companies themselves.

Home Town Booster—Western Electric, the manufacturing, purchasing and supply unit of the Bell System, alone bought from 23,000 concerns in 2500 cities and towns last year.

These things are good for you and good for your town.

Need for Adequate Rates—The jobs, the wages, the money spent for local goods and services, and the continuation of good telephone service, all depend on adequate rates and earnings.

For only through adequate rates and earnings can Bell Telephone Companies meet the increased cost of furnishing telephone service and attract the new capital needed to improve it.

Reclassification of LDO's

Regulations covering the reclassification of Limited Duty Officers in the Regular Navy have been published by the Bureau of Naval Personnel.

Under the Officer Personnel Act of 1947, it is provided that upon application and selection, officers appointed for Limited Duty may be designated for the Line of the Navy, for the Staff Corps of the Navy; and for Unrestricted and Supply duty in the Marine Corps.

In the Line, the officers may apply for Engineering Duty, Aeronautical Engineering Duty, Special Duty, and Unrestricted Performance of Duty in the Line of the Navy. In the Staff Corps they may apply for Unrestricted Performance of Duty in the Supply Corps and Civil Engineer Corps.

Applicants will be considered by a board and those recommended and approved by the Secretary of the Navy will be examined in professional subjects appropriate to the category in which selected.

In order to qualify for one of the designations, a limited Duty Officer must:

1—Have served at least one year as an LDO before applying.

2—Be junior to the grade of Lt. Comdr. or Maj.; and in the case of applicants in the grade of Lt. in the Navy, or Capt. in the Marine Corps, shall not have served more than 3 years from date of rank in such grades.

3—Meet the physical requirements applicable to other officers in the same grade and category for which application is made.

4—For officers above the grade of Ensign, be qualified to stand Officer-of-the-Deck watches underway and in port in the case of applications for the category of Unrestricted Performance of Duty in the Line of the Navy.

5—Have the necessary professional or graduate degree which may be required for the category requested, where applicable.

6—Be recommended by his commanding officer as qualified for designation in the type of duty requested.

Upon being designated for these other duties, status as Limited Duty Officers will be terminated and the officers will become subject to the same selection and retirement procedures as other officers of the category in which they are designated. No change will be made or authorized in lineal positions and precedence, however, solely as a result of the removal of the LDO designation.

Limited Duty Officers desirous of changing their designation are to make application to the Chief of Naval Personnel or the Commandant of the Marine Corps, via official channels, the Navy announced.

OPERATION OF AIRCRAFT

During Fiscal Year 1951, the Air Force will spend $296,000,000 for the operation of aircraft, which will be flown 4,155,074 hours.

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

Exams for Ensigns

Written professional examinations for Ensigns due for promotion during 1951, except those commissioned from the Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps sources and non-military graduates appointed directly from a civilian status, will be held during November or December 1950.

Ensigns of the excepted categories will be examined in the spring of 1951 after the results of selection-for-retention as Regular Navy officers are known.

The provisions and scope of the examinations are contained in Bureau Personnel Circular Letters 178-49 and 209-49.

Navy Nominations

The President on 28 June sent to the Senate the following Navy nominations: Commander, SC (Temp.)—Charles A. Baldwin.

Lt. Commander, SC (Temp.)—Robert E. Whelan.

Ensign, CEC (Perm.)—Benjamin E. Weeks.

RAF to Train With Marines

A Night Fighter Team of the Royal Air Force will arrive soon at the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N. C., to train with Marine Corps fliers.

The British fliers will be assigned to Aircraft, Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, as part of the interservice exchange policy recently promulgated by the Defense Department.

Marine EM Uniform

Marine enlisted men will be permitted to wear either the old-type, coat-style jacket, or the newer "battle-type" jacket next Fall when they revert to "greens," according to a recent Marine Corps Memorandum.

The directive reemphasized previous instructions to commanding officers prescribing the optional wear of the two jackets, and pointed out that "large quantities" of the old-type jacket "all sizes, including special sizes, are on hand and available."

Commanding officers were instructed to "permit enlisted men to wear the coat-style jacket on liberty and for such other local uses as may be prescribed."

Posthumous DSM to Marine

Posthumous award of the Distinguished Service Medal to Maj. Gen. Charles D. Barrett, former assistant commandant of the Marine Corps, has been made to his widow, Mrs. Emily H. Barrett of Alexandria, Va.

The citation and medal were presented to Mrs. Barrett by General C. B. Cates, Marine Commandant, in lieu of the Legion of Merit, also awarded posthumously on 3 Nov. 1948. The higher award was approved by the Secretary of the Navy, based on an Act of Congress on 3 May.

The citation read in part, "for exceptionally meritorious service to the government of the United States in a duty of great responsibility as Assistant Commandant of the United States Marine Corps; Commanding General of the Third Marine Brigade; Commanding General of the Third Marine Division; and as Commanding General of the First Marine Amphibious Corps..."

General Barrett developed in the Third Marine Division "a powerful striking force which was later to blast the enemy from his strongholds on Bougainville, Guam and Iwo Jima," the DSM citation stated. He died in Noumea on 8 Oct. 1943.

Present at the ceremony at Marine Corps headquarters was Maj. Charles D. Barrett, Jr., now stationed at HQMC.

West Coast Marine Review

A West Coast air-ground fighting team of the Fleet Marine Force, consisting of the First Marine Division and the First Marine Air Wing, will conclude Spring training on 3 July with a combat review at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

In an hour-long parade, 7,000 members of the two Marine units, together with 800 vehicles and 400 towed-units, will pass in review as planes of the air wing fly aerial formations.

Gen. Cates to England

The British Admiralty announced this week in London that General C. B. Cates, Commandant, U. S. Marine Corps, would be a guest of the Royal Marines in England in July.

General Cates will arrive in London 12 July and will see the United Service team shoot at Bisley. His tour also will include a program at the School of Combined Operations; a demonstration by the Plymouth Group of Royal Marines in company attack and cliff assault; and a tour of the Royal Marine Infantry Training Center. He will pay calls on the Naval commanders-in-chief at Plymouth and Portsmouth and see a demonstration by the Royal Marines at Portsmouth.

General Cates will return to Washington at the end of July.

Marines Seek Young Fliers

A number of young aviators will be added to the Marine Corps' air arm during the next twelve months, according to a plan announced this week by Marine Corps Headquarters.

Marine Corps spokesman said the new plan means that a greater number of graduates of the Naval Aviation Cadet program will be absorbed by Marine Aviation. Earlier, both the Navy and the Marine Corps had confirmed reports that many graduates of the program would be placed in an inactive status immediately following graduation, due to cuts in the Navy's over-all program.

Under the new procurement plan, older aviators will either be transferred to ground units, reduced to their permanent enlisted ranks and retained as pilots, or discharged from the service. This will be accomplished, the announcement said, "by voluntary transfer of pilots to ground duty, normal attrition and forced attrition by revoking pilots' orders to flying duty."

A board, to be convened by General Clifton B. Cates, Marine Commandant, will select 83 Marine aviators for revocation of flight orders and transfer to ground duty.

Younger aviators will be placed in active duty billets this month. A Marine spokesman said that it will not be necessary to wait for the action of the board to put the new plan into operation inasmuch as the revocations during the year will equalize the number of new aviators brought into the Corps.

The board appointed by General Cates will consider all Marine aviators, regular, unrestricted, temporary and limited duty flying officers from the rank of lieutenant to colonel, inclusive. The announcement said that the total number selected will be reduced by the number of flying officers who voluntarily transfer to ground duty.

Regular officers who are selected, the Marine Corps pointed out, will be reassigned to ground Marine Corps units, whereas temporary officers selected by the board may elect:

1—Reduction to their permanent enlisted ranks with continued flying duty as enlisted pilots;

2—Reduction to their permanent enlisted ranks and discharge for the convenience of the government; or,

3—Depending upon the requirements of the ground units, transfer to ground units in their present temporary officer ranks for non-flying duties.

The board will also consider a number of enlisted pilots for revocation of flight orders. This number will be 15 plus the number of temporary officers who revert to enlisted pilot status. These reverted officers, however, will not be considered for termination of their flight orders.

The Marine Corps said that the new plan had become necessary "because of the high proportion of flying officers in the Marine Corps," a condition which "has prevented training new aviators in adequate numbers without exceeding strength ceilings."

Marine Rifle Honor

The highest honor accorded a first year Marine Corps rifleman was awarded to El Toro's Pfc. Frank D. Davis recently when he received the Brig. Gen. Calvin B. Matthews Trophy.

victory may well depend on the skill and speed with which we can produce and deliver new airplanes.

Along more technical lines policies have been prepared, discussed and coordinated to implement the powerplant utility parts standardization between industry and the services. Standards for engine accessory drive for turbo-prop and turbo-jet engines have been completed. To improve practices for preservation, packaging and design of shipping containers for jet engines new requirements have been established.

Continuing efforts to reduce duplication (Please turn to Page 1189)

The Navy's anti-submarine equipment, the ground forces' airborne materiel and new super tanks, and certainly all of the aircraft and missiles required by the Air Force and the Naval air arm, are a far cry indeed from the tools of war in use only a few years ago. In all cases new manufacturing processes with still closer tolerances and heavier demands on higher skills are involved.

All of these factors increase the importance of industry's assignment in national defense.

Insofar as this industry is concerned, cooperation with the services has taken diverse forms, each of which has proved mutually beneficial and productive. To cite one recent case, the armed services and the industry both came to the realization that long-term procurement planning was essential both to economy and to the survival of a healthy aircraft industry. Industry reported to the Congressional Aviation Policy Board, for example, that savings up to 25 per cent in the cost of an aircraft program could be effected if the procurement was scheduled on a long-term instead of a year-to-year basis with accompanying interruptions and cutbacks.

These presentations caused the inclusion in recent appropriation bills of a provision that funds appropriated therein would remain available until expended instead of being cancelled after a certain limiting date. This was an important step toward long-term planning, since it enabled longer commitments and obviated the need for hasty decisions at the end of a fiscal year. It would be desirable, of course, to accompany this new feature of the appropriation bills with a legislative directive for long-term procurement planning.

Industrial Preparedness

There are many other projects of major importance demanding our attention. Foremost is industrial preparedness planning. Although most companies have made studies for and in cooperation with the services, satisfactory and realistic plans cannot be developed until overall strategic requirements have been determined and military preparedness planning integrated into that of the entire national economy. It is encouraging to note that the National Security Resources Board, which is designed to direct and coordinate the mobilization of the entire resources of the nation—manpower, materials, machines, civil economy—has finally been placed under permanent stewardship.

Within the Aircraft Industries Association an increasing number of committees and sub-committees have been established to work with the services on special problems. These committees are composed of personnel from member companies who provide advice and policy guidance for the AIA staff members in these specialized fields. This is a comparatively new departure in industry-government relations and stems from the success enjoyed by the Aircraft War Production Council which was designed to facilitate the sharing of skills, technical data and even materials in support of the war effort.

Some of our joint efforts which have produced substantial benefits, not only to the industry but to the services and the taxpayer as well, are in the procurement and contractual relations fields. A substantial effort has been devoted by both the Munitions Board and by industry committees to the coordination of the various sections of the Armed Services Procurement Regulations prior to publication to insure that they are workable. To date both industry and the Munitions Board are well satisfied with this arrangement.

Industry recommendations for a peacetime contract settlement act have been submitted to the Defense Establishment which has drafted such an act for introduction in the Congress. In the manpower field industry is cooperating in the preparation of plans for mobilization of manpower in the event of war. If adopted, it is felt these plans would relieve much of the confusion and wasted effort experienced in World War II and assist in preserving trained production teams which would be indispensable in the event of mobilization.

Design and engineering producibility are receiving attention in industrial mobilization planning. This field is very broad, however, and much energy must still be exerted to insure that producibility is incorporated into modern aircraft designs from their inception, since

NEW ALL-PURPOSE NAVY JET FIGHTER for night stratosphere operation... in all kinds of weather

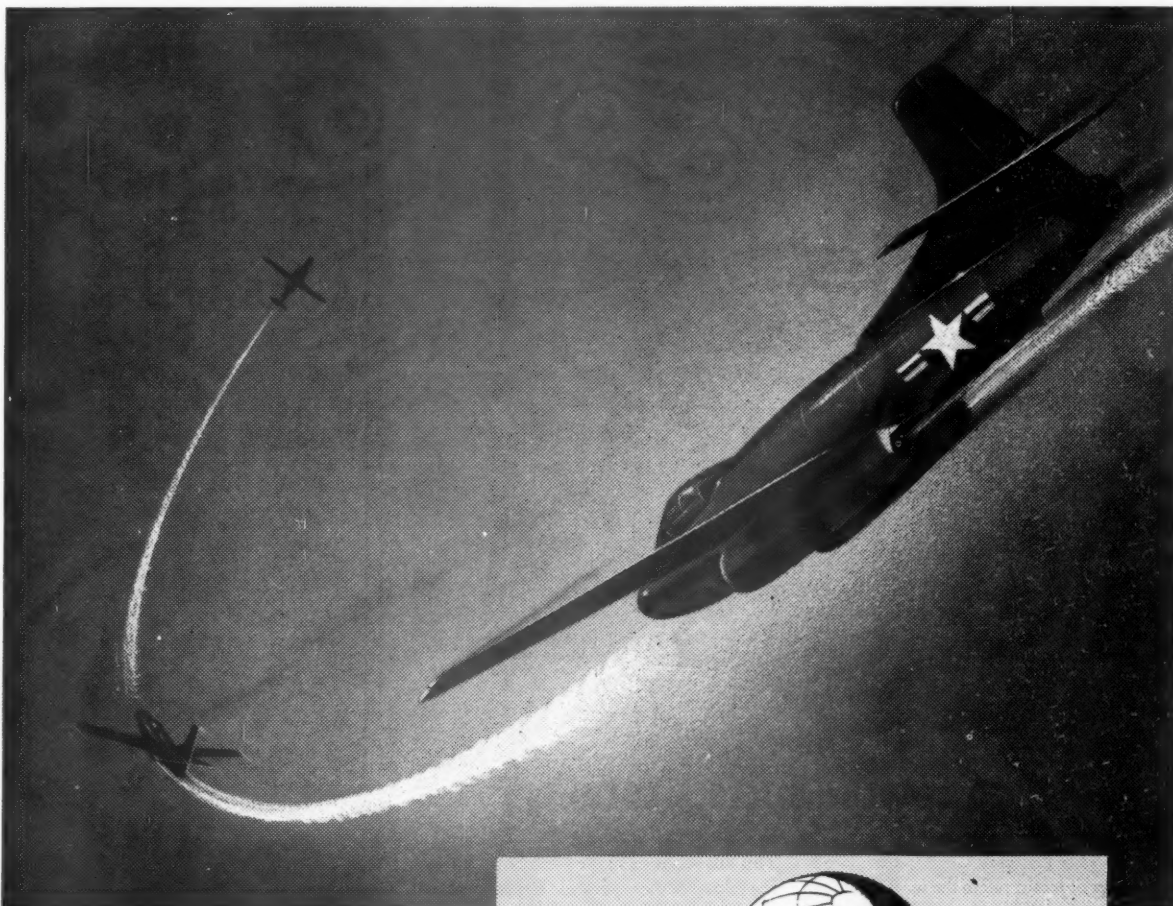

F3D Skyknight, powered by two jets, is designed to reach high altitudes at extreme speeds for night interception of unfriendly bombers by radar in all kinds of weather.

Designed by Douglas for the U. S. Navy, the Skyknight is suited for various tasks aboard a carrier with little compromise of its basic role as an all-weather fighter.

High design efficiency permits the twin-jet F3D to fly at advanced speeds and over exceptionally long distances. This makes it adaptable as an attack fighter, long-range patrol or reconnaissance plane, or as a long-range fighter escort.

The Skyknight is another in the long line of dependable Douglas aircraft which have made the name "Douglas" world-famous for three decades.

U. S. AIR FORCE

Organization Bill

Air Force officials told THE JOURNAL this week that while a detailed study has been made regarding basic organization legislation, no bill has yet been drafted at USAF Headquarters.

Representative Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, during recent hearings on a measure to increase the number of three and four-star air generals, asked the Air Force to bring up an organization bill, such as that recently enacted for the Army.

Last week, Chairman Vinson introduced a bill he had drafted himself to prescribe Air Force responsibilities and organizational structure. The Air Force now has no such legislative restrictions. This measure, H.R. 8889, obviously was not tailored to Air Force desires, since it would return to the Army duties now being performed by the Air Force Medical Service, the Air Force Chief Chaplain and the Judge Advocate General of the Air Force.

Further, Mr. Vinson said the Army should assume responsibility for much engineer and quartermaster work now being done by the Air Force.

Late this week, no date had been set for inaugurating hearings on Chairman Vinson's bill. When these hearings are held, however, it is certain that the proposals which would strip the Air Force of many of its present services will be strongly opposed.

There were reports this week that Mr. Vinson, in drafting the measure, was well aware of these points of dispute. Whether he and his colleagues will insist on the return to the Army of many functions it formerly performed for the Air Force or whether these highlights of the bill were introduced primarily to prod the Air Force into action on an organization measure remains to be seen.

A spot-check by THE JOURNAL this week showed that if Mr. Vinson's proposals concerning only the Air Force Medical Service, Chaplains and Judge Advocate General are upheld by Congress, more than 3,000 officers might be transferred to the Army.

At the present time, the Medical Service of the Air Force has 2578 officers. There are 446 Air Force chaplains and 536 Air judge advocates, according to data made available at USAF Headquarters.

Promotion Quotas

The Air Force this week revealed that 1800 airmen are to be promoted to the grade of E-4 during July. The freeze will continue on advancement of airmen to higher enlisted grades.

The quotas allotted for promotion to E-4, the Air Force said, were determined by considering the assigned strength of E-5 personnel by command or unit with promoting authority in relation to Air Force-wide strength in the same grade. Strength in E-5 was reported to be several thousand under the budget-authorized figure.

On or before 20 July, each unit having promotion authority will inform USAF Headquarters of the number of promotions made under the following quotas.

In addition, the number of corporals eligible for promotion during August under existing regulations, but excluding personnel with specialties classified as "critically surplus," will be submitted to Headquarters for guidance in establishing future quotas.

Quotas for July E-4 promotions are:

Industry Training

USAF Institute of Technology has announced the opening of three Air Force industrial career fields for qualified officers of the Regular and Reserve Corps.

Industrial training of one year's duration is being offered in the Communication, Transportation and Medical fields under the Training-in-Industry phase of the USAFIT curriculums.

All three programs call for the selection of qualified Regular Air Force officers, an Institute spokesman said, but there is space for a limited number of company grade Reserve officers in the Communications field.

Requirements for the three career fields are broken down briefly as follows:

Communications. Available to both Regular and Reserve officers serving in company grades. Applicants should possess a basic knowledge of current Air Force communications systems. Training will be conducted by the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, the American Telegraph and Telephone Company and the Signal Corps School at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey.

Transportation. Available to Regular officers in the temporary or permanent grade of major and lieutenant colonel. Eligible applicants must either be presently assigned in a transportation specialty or have had previous experience in the transportation field. Training will be conducted by transportation companies (railroad, motor carrier, airline, steamship, etc.) in the New York, Boston, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago or Seattle areas.

Training will encompass problems in carrier and industrial traffic management, with emphasis on the executive side.

Medical. Available to Regular officers in the grades of Captain, Major and Lieutenant Colonel. Applicants must possess undergraduate training in pre-medicine, pharmacy or chemistry and graduate training in the field of business administration. Equivalents of this formal training will be evaluated by the USAFIT.

Applications for any one of these fields must be submitted to the Commandant, USAF Institute of Technology, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, in accordance with procedures outlined in Air Force Regulation 50-15.

Applications should be submitted in time to reach Wright-Patterson AFB by 1 Aug.

Air Force Nomination

The President has sent to the Senate the nomination of Andrew J. Myers, Jr. to be a second lieutenant in the Air Force. He had inadvertently been omitted from a previous list.

WORLD LEADER IN JETS...LOCKHEED

The Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, largest producer of jet aircraft in the world, has built almost as many jet airplanes as all other U. S. manufacturers combined.

Important member of the Lockheed jet family is the two-place T-33 Jet Trainer (shown here), only jet trainer airplane built in America today (Navy designation: TO-2).

This dual-control fighter-trainer now trains the pilots for the supersonic fighter planes of the Army, the Navy and the Marine Corps.

The experience obtained in the design, development and manufacture of jet fighter planes is invaluable in the Lockheed laboratories where the designs of the future are taking shape today.

tion and improve standardization, the services, with industry counsel and assistance, have prepared a basic spare parts document for service use which will result in a relatively uniform treatment of spare parts by both services, and will represent real savings to the American taxpayer.

Cost Reductions

Of special significance is the Air Force-Industry program to improve fabricating techniques and production methods to bring about substantial cost reductions. In this program some 200 separate projects to improve production methods are under consideration. Agencies within the AIA and the Air Force's Materiel Command analyze and investigate problems and difficulties encountered in current production and, wherever practical, action is taken to develop new machining operations, materials forming techniques and similar methods or processes which will provide an efficient and economical solution to those problems.

It must be emphasized that these relationships must be on a continuing basis and the standards established not be permitted to become fixed. The rapidly changing requirements of the services, the important developments in scientific fields, and constantly improving manufacturing techniques must not be vitiated by inflexible administrative standards and procedures.

There are several fields recognized by both the services and industry in which the application of additional effort by both parties will increase the effectiveness of our combined military-industrial team. Additional emphasis must be placed on the elimination of conflicting Air Force and Navy requirements. For example, if one technique of inspection, either a Navy technique or an Air Force technique, could be adopted the difficulties experienced by the manufacturers in supplying common items to the two services would be substantially reduced. There is much that can be done by both industry and the services to increase the interchange of knowledge between field representatives and the top policy making levels. This would increase the quality of equipment delivered and reduce the costs and confusion inherent in "horse and buggy" methods of disseminating information.

There is an awareness within the industry and within the services of these problems, and efforts in an unusual degree are being exerted to arrive at the best solutions. The harmony and the spirit of mutual understanding and cooperation that are being developed between the military and industrial members of the national defense team are in themselves national assets of inestimable value.

Temporary Promotions

Release is expected before mid-July of the Air Force officers selected for temporary promotion to the ranks of captain and major. Already published have been the names of officers chosen for temporary advancement to colonel and lieutenant colonel.

Top Honors to Air Officer

In Georgetown University's 151st commencement exercises on 12 June, Lt. Col. Eugene B. Sisk, jr., USAF, received top honors among the 233 graduates of the law school receiving LL.B. degrees.

The Francis Edmund Lucey, S.J., Medal, awarded to the student in the graduating class who attained the highest average during his entire course, was won by Colonel Sisk, who compiled an "A" average over the three-year period. He also served during his senior year as editor-in-chief of the Georgetown Law Journal. Colonel Sisk, a regular officer of the Air Force since his integration in 1946, has been attending the Georgetown Law School under the Air Force educational program.

Wings for Gen.'s Son

Warren R. Carter, jr., son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Warren R. Carter, of Scott AFB, Ill., recently was commissioned a Second Lieutenant officer and pilot in the Air Force. This announcement was made by Maj. Gen. Robert W. Harper, Commanding General, Air Training Command, at Scott AFB.

Lieutenant Carter received his bars and silver wings at a ceremony at Williams AFB, Ariz., upon completion of thirteen months of intensive pilot training.

15th AF P.O.

Maj. Donald C. Foster, Public Information Officer at Davis-Monthan AFB, Ariz., has been transferred to Fifteenth Air Force Headquarters, March AFB, Riverside, Cal., Col. W. P. Fisher, 43d Bombardment Wing Commander, reported last week.

Major Foster will serve as Air Force Public Information Officer under Maj. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell, Fifteenth Air Force Commander. Capt. Howard L. Hensley will succeed Major Foster as Public Information Officer of the 43d Wing at Davis-Monthan.

600 AF Housing Units

Randolph AFB, Tex., has been assured an additional $5,000,000 military housing project under the authority of the Wherry Housing Act. Col. John G. Fowler, base commander, announced that the Murchison Brothers of Dallas had been selected as the sponsors.

The project will include 600 sets of quarters with 360 allocated for airmen and 240 for officers. They will be broken down into apartments and single family homes.

For airmen the project calls for 18 one-bedroom apartment units to rent for $52.50 per month; 236 two-bedroom apartment units to rent at $62.50; and 106 three-bedroom units for $72.50.

The 240 officer-units are to be broken down to 156 two-bedroom apartment units to rent for $72.50 per month; 72 three-bedroom units to rent for $87.50 and 12 four-bedroom single family homes to rent for $105 per month. All rentals will include utilities, Randolph officials said.

The base at present is nearing completion of 80 units costing about $640,000 which will be ready for occupancy in

Army Navy Air Force Journal 1189 1 July 1950

August. These units are all being built for airmen of the base.

Along with other units, Randolph will have, at the completion of the $5,000,000 project, 413 units for officers and 656 units for airmen. Officials declared that this would "about take care of the permanent personnel at the base." The housing will be built on some 100 acres on the north side of the base between the main gate and the Taj Mahal, base headquarters. It will be located on both sides of the main drive into the base.

First Air Force Post

Appointment of Col. Ernest H. Beverly, formerly Deputy for Materiel, as Assistant to the Vice Commander of First Air Force, has been announced by Maj. Gen. Glenn O. Barcus, Commanding General, at Mitchel AFB, N. Y.

Colonel Beverly succeeds Col. Ralph J. Erickson who retired recently after 30 years' service. Col. Robert W. C. Wimsatt is now serving as Deputy for Materiel.

SATURDAY, 1 JULY 1950

"A return to the rule of force in international affairs would have far reaching effects. The United States will continue to uphold the rule of law."—PRESIDENT HARRY S. TRUMAN.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Early construction of adequate Government quarters for commissioned and enlisted personnel at all permanent stations, supplemented by satisfactory legislation to encourage private building of dwelling units near Service establishments.
2. Improved retirement pay for wounded and disabled personnel.
3. Continuance and extension of medical and dental care for families of Service personnel; provision for education at Government expense of children of Service personnel on duty at stations where suitable free schools are not available; and survivor benefits for dependents.
4. Restoration of military exemptions from Federal income tax, broadened to exclude all retired pay from taxation.
5. Early attainment and continued maintenance of a fully-manned 70-group Air Force.
6. Prompt construction of a radar fence and air warning net to cover all avenues of hostile air approach.
7. Rapid expansion of our submarine fleet and accelerated development of anti-submarine vessels and equipment, with continued experimentation and construction of new Naval types.
8. Organization and training of a balanced Mobile Ground Force, including air-borne and amphibious troops, of sufficient strength and ready, with complete and modern equipment, for immediate action in an emergency.
9. Development and improvement of the organization and training of the National Guard, Organized Reserves and other civilian components of the Armed Forces, with appropriate training facilities, and restoration of inactive training pay for all elements.
10. Continued scientific research and development in all new and unconventional devices and methods of warfare backed by industry and labor kept constantly ready and trained through production and educational orders.
11. Close supervision and constant restudy of Service promotion and elimination policies and procedures to insure the prevention or prompt correction of injustices and inequities.

THE sudden explosion of violent warfare in Korea is startling evidence of the instability of the international situation. The brutal attack by northern Communists on the Korean republic, a nation sponsored and supported by the United Nations, was undoubtedly instigated, planned and directed by the Soviet Union. This flagrant defiance of the world organization can only mean that, irrespective of commitments, the Russians are prepared to strike at any time and at any place it serves their interest to do so. The Korean tragedy makes it mandatory that the United States further strengthen its military security and be constantly alert to guard against sudden attack. It ends for the time being at least recent efforts at conciliating the Communist aggressors in Asia or Europe. There is the appalling possibility that Oriental hostilities may transform post-war reconstruction to pre-war preparation. Under the circumstances the Congress would be justified in a substantial upward revision of the military budget for 1951, now under consideration. Recent events dictate discarding all thought of further retrenchment at the expense of the Armed Forces. The procurement of new and better ships, planes, weapons and equipment should be accelerated as an imperative necessity. Personnel of the Services should be brought more nearly to authorized strength and training programs should be expanded. All this may be accomplished through a realistic consideration of vital military requirements by the Congress. The hopeful feature is that experience has demonstrated that force is often respected by an aggressor when diplomacy is ignored.

A RECENT decision by the Comptroller General reemphasizes the need for some system of reimbursing Service personnel for the use of their privately owned automobiles on government business. In the present instance Lt. Comdr. George M. Bishop, an officer of the Coast Guard, applied for reimbursement for taxicabs and travel in his own personal automobile which he was forced to use on government business during a period when public carrier services were strike-bound and there was insufficient Government transportation. The Comptroller General, after carefully tracing through the legal mazes that enmesh his decisions, held that Commander Bishop could be repaid for the taxicab fares but not for the use of his personal automobile. While the decision may be legally sound, it is manifestly unjust. Yet week in and week out, for many years, service people have been using their private automobiles to expedite their work for the government and getting no reimbursement for it. Though they make it possible to do more work and do it better, and though they save the government wear and tear on official vehicles, no system has yet been devised to repay them. It's about time something were done.

RECENT Congressional enactments have materially strengthened our military security. These include legislation prescribing the composition of the Army and the Air Force, the reorganization of the Army, and the extension of Selective Service. One bill gives Congressional approval of the principle of a 70-Group Air Force and an 837,000-man Army. Under current budgetary limitations the Air Force in the fiscal year just beginning will be held to 48 Groups, and the Army to a strength of 630,000. Notwithstanding this practical consideration, the Congress has placed a reasonable ceiling on the peacetime strength and composition of the two Services, and has opened the way for planning the attainment of the goals fixed, in the event of a continuing deterioration of the tense international situation. The Army Organization Act eliminates a mass of obsolete legislation, and provides a strong organization, sufficiently flexible to meet the changing requirements of a progressive, modern Army, tuned to new developments and techniques. At the same time it provides highly desirable safeguards against bureaucratic abuse of power. The provision for rotation of Washington duty guarantees a periodical change of viewpoint, and makes difficult the perpetuation of control by any clique or faction. The extension of Selective Service provides a means whereby a rapid expansion of military strength may be assured in a national emergency, without awaiting the enactment of new legislation. These new statutes are definitely a long stride forward.

Letters to the Editor

Letters expressing individual views and intended for publication should be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication, but as evidence of good faith. If the writer desires to omit his name when the letter is published, he should so state. THE JOURNAL may find it necessary to use only extracts from longer letters so that more viewpoints may be represented.

Survivors' Benefits

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The principal weakness in the survivors' benefit plan now under discussion in the House Armed Services Committee lies in the separate treatment of active and reserve personnel. As now set up, it would operate as term insurance for active personnel who would become ineligible for further participation the moment they retire. When they pass to the retired list, where mortality rates are the highest and consequently the need the greatest, they are grouped under a separate arrangement where, of course, the amount to be paid into the plan by the participants must be considerably higher. If this is to be a career plan it should be treated as a unit so that the payments made during active service, when income is higher and mortality rates (in peacetime) are lower, would help bear the cost when the participants grow older and retire.

One must not lose sight of the fact, too, that the establishment of such a contributory plan might well lead to progressive reductions, or eliminations, in established pension rates and the six-month death gratuity—long considered an integral part of compensation for service.

Academy Service

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I have yet to have one satisfactory explanation presented for the denial of service credit to graduates of the Academies. We Reserve officers were given credit back in 1942 for time spent in the ORC—not on active duty, just having our names carried on the official rolls—on a full-time basis. What were the justified reasons for this?

The Regular Services backed the Reserve and National Guard in securing their retirement benefits. How about the National Guard Association and the Reserve Officers Association in turn making an active issue of this point?

Lt. Col., USAR.

Dependent Mother

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I quote from the new pay bill: "Such term (dependent) shall include the father or mother of such member, provided he or she is in fact dependent on such member for over half of his or her support and actually resides in the household of said member."

It has been interpreted that to reside in the same household means the dependent must live at the exact location of duty of the party claiming a dependent. For example: my mother is dependent on me for her support, but since she is living in my place of residence in the states and I am in the Far East she is not considered my dependent, and therefore not authorized a rental allowance. If she did live in my household in the Far East, she would be furnished living quarters here, and again would not be subject to a rental allowance. Either way you turn you aren't eligible for the rental allowance for a dependent mother.

Bigamy

Nurse: "I'll have you know I'm marrying an officer and a gentleman."
Patient: "You can't do that. It's bigamy."

Explanation

Then there was the drunk who arrived late at the cocktail party, hastily threw down six double martinis and smiled benignly around the room. "I feel a lot more like I do now than when I came in."

In The Journal

One Year Ago

Rear Adm. Leland P. Lovette, former Chief of the Naval Mission to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, was retired from the Naval Service this week in the rank of Vice Admiral.

10 Years Ago

Col. John Hester, Inf., USA, has taken over his new duties as Executive for Reserve Affairs, War Department.

25 Years Ago

After a trip during which he inspected every important Army post in the United States, Brig. Gen. Albert C. Dalton, Assistant Quartermaster General in charge of construction, decided to recommend to the War Department that all of the old plans for the construction of quarters be unceremoniously thrown into the waste basket. General Dalton thinks that there should be no fixed type for Army quarters, but that the character of the buildings should depend upon the climate and their location.

50 Years Ago

The Board of Naval Officers, which recently met for the purpose of deciding the question of the distribution of battery for the five battleships authorized by the Acts of March 3, 1899, and June 7, 1900, has submitted a detailed report to the Secretary of the Navy. By a vote of twelve to one, the Board has recommended that three of the battleships be built with superposed and waist 8-inch turrets, and two with quadrilaterally arranged 8-inch turrets. The recommendation has been approved by the Secretary of the Navy and thus has ended, for the present only, the long controversy over the superposed turret.

85 Years Ago

Thirty seven persons are said to have been indicted for treason in the District Court sitting at Norfolk, Va. In the list occur the names of the following general officers of the late Confederate Army: R. E. Lee, Cooper, Ewell, Longstreet, Early, Hampton, Fitzhugh Lee. Hardly two months before that indictment was framed, these officers capitulated to Lt. Gen. Grant and Maj. Gen. Sherman and the express agreement that "each officer and man will be allowed to return to their homes, not to be disturbed by United States authority so long as they observe their parole and the laws in force where they may reside." Upon what principle of justice or of honor do we violate our pledge to them?

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—The brutal and unprovoked assault on the Republic of Korea by the northern Communists has caused reassessment of the foreign policies of the western powers that may occasion a profound change in international relations.

The immediate reaction was a special meeting of the United Nations Security Council, called at the request of the United States, and the passage of a resolution directing the aggressors to cease their attack and to return to positions occupied prior to the attack. Russia boycotted the meeting and the North Korean puppets ignored the order.

This was followed by the dramatic announcement of President Truman that the United States would provide immediate sea and air support and cover for the Korean troops in their struggle to expel the invaders. Subsequently the Security Council approved this action and adopted a resolution calling upon all member nations to provide assistance to the Korean republic in resisting aggression. The absence of the Soviet delegation, for the announced reason that participation of the Chinese nationalists made the meeting illegal, eliminated the complications that might have resulted from a Russian veto.

However, the President's declaration went farther than pledging American support for free Korea. He ordered the American Navy to prevent a Red invasion of Formosa, and at the same time directed the Chinese nationalists to cease attempts to carry the war to the mainland. In taking this action the President doubtless was influenced not only by the Korean episode, but also by the report of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson and General Omar N. Bradley, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who returned only last Saturday from Japan and are reported to have strongly recommended that Formosa be kept out of Red hands.

The President also directed that American military aid to Indo-China be expedited, that our forces in the Philippines be strengthened, and that assistance to the Philippine government be accelerated.

In effect, the President's policy, which received immediate and almost unanimous Congressional and editorial support, prescribed a limit in the Orient beyond which militant Communism will not be allowed to go. In Korea that limit is the 38th parallel of latitude, which divides Soviet-supported North Korea from the Korean republic. In the Pacific, Chinese Reds will be kept out of Formosa, and in Southeast Asia the line is the northern boundary of Indo-China.

Foreign capitals of non-Communist countries were quick to back the bold stand of the United States and to pledge official and unofficial support. It was recognized that a definite stand had to be taken against the military advance of Communism, which threatened to engulf, one by one, all of the smaller states of Asia. Relief and gratification were expressed that the United States had assumed the leadership in combatting the menace.

One result of this week's developments may be a reversal of the movement that had been gaining headway to seat the Chinese Red delegation to the United Nations. This had been sought by Trygve Lie, Secretary-General, with the support of the Russian bloc, and some encouragement from Great Britain and France. In view of the Korean situation it may be that the United States would no longer refrain from using its veto to prevent the present admission of the Chinese Reds.

The action of the United States in providing a Naval patrol to prevent the invasion of Formosa is an unexpected boon for the feeble nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek, as it removes an ever-present threat to the perpetuation of his regime. Accelerated aid to Indo-China will be of great importance to France and local governments in suppressing the dangerous Communist uprising in Southeast Asia. More American troops in the Philippines and increased financial and military assistance will enable the Filipinos to take prompt and vigorous action against the Communist-supported Huk guerrillas.

The danger of a new world war arising out of the Korean episode and the prompt military moves of our government is frankly recognized by American officials. However, this is regarded as a calculated risk that must be assumed as an alternative far preferable to continued appeasement, with the chance of war only postponed, not eliminated. Vigorous action, it is agreed, is more likely to promote world peace, than inaction or dilatory tactics.

Navy Ship Transfers—Since the end of the war, the Navy has transferred 158 ships to other countries, including 83 to China, and 50, on a loan basis, to the Philippine Government. In addition, 6 patrol craft were transferred to the Government of Greece, and 19 other vessels went to the Government of Turkey.

Although most of the craft have been relatively small ships of the fleet auxiliary type, some larger vessels have been included in the transfers.

Among the ships transferred to Turkey were four destroyers, four submarines, one gasoline tanker, one large net tender, one fleet auxiliary, and eight minesweepers.

Those which are on loan to the Government of the Philippines include 30 subchasers, sub-chaser escorts, and sub-chaser sweepers. The remainder consist mostly of minesweepers, tugs, storeships, and other small vessels.

The Chinese Government has received the largest number of vessels (83) under the aid program. Six of the vessels transferred to China were destroyer escorts, 34 were landing craft, and 13 were minesweepers. Also included in the group were 13 subchasers, and two sub-chaser escorts, as well as a number of patrol craft and smaller vessels.

Military Aircraft Production—Data made available by the Aircraft Industries Association of America this week showed that 2,544 military aircraft were produced during 1949, with an airframe weight of about 29,800,000 pounds. During fiscal year 1950, it is estimated that the Air Force received 1,732 planes and the Navy 981, with delivery schedules for fiscal year 1951 calling for 1,383 and 914 planes, respectively.

Hot Cold-Weather Course—Last week's JOURNAL told of a reverse Arctic maneuver at Big Delta, Alaska, where the Army will give a course in Summer Arctic operations, with emphasis on mosquitoes and mire instead of sleet and snow.

This week, in the midst of a heat wave, comes word from the Second Marine Air Wing at Cherry Point, N. C., that a cold weather school will begin 31 July. The course is designed to give Marine airmen basic information concerning problems in Arctic areas.

Korean Casualty Benefits—As first casualties in the Korean fighting were reported this week, THE JOURNAL was told by military and Veterans Administration officials that wartime rates will be paid to wounded personnel and to dependents of Servicemen "killed in action." The wartime rates are 20 per cent higher than those applicable in peacetime, officials reported.

Defense spokesmen said that personnel killed in Korea are listed officially as "killed in action." Thus, their deaths would be attributable to service under extraordinary conditions, entitling wounded to higher pension rates and dependents to wartime rates.

Possible Selective Service Use—Although Department of Defense officials emphasized this week that there is no immediate intention to utilize the Selective Service Act, extended for one year by Congressional action, there is evidence in recent hearings on Capitol Hill that if enlistments should fall off it may become necessary to order inductions. Approximately 500,000 enlistments will expire in 1951.

All of the Services, according to latest official Department of Defense information, are below budget strengths. As was reported in last week's issue of THE JOURNAL, whereas the 1951 budget envisions an active duty military strength of 1,517,000, at the beginning of June the Armed Forces had only 1,466,500 men.

With regard to future trends, these points were made during recent testimony on the 1951 budget.

Army—Assistant Secretary Karl Bendetsen has stated that during the next fiscal year the Army will have its biggest net loss of personnel since the war. He said the net loss will be about 140,000 men. Reenlistments, he said, approximate 50 per cent. However, both Assistant Secretary Bendetsen and General J. Lawton Collins, USA Chief of Staff, testified that they expected to maintain the budget strength without use of Selective Service, although both urged its retention.

Navy—Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, USN, Chief of Naval Operations, has reported that fiscal year 1951 will see the expiration of thousands of enlistments. He explained that as a result of enlistment terminations of some 200,000 two-year enlistees in 1948—few of whom reenlisted—it was necessary to recruit an almost equal number of replacements. The three-year enlistment terms of these men, he emphasized, will expire in fiscal year 1951. Although the reenlistment rate is up, said Admiral Sherman, "the problem remains a sizable one."

Air Force—According to testimony of Maj. Gen. D. C. Strother, USAF, Director of Military Personnel, the Air Force will have about 121,000 airmen eligible for separation during fiscal year 1951. Of these, 54,000 are expected to reenlist. Thus, there will be need for the recruitment and training of 67,000 new men. That Air Force enlistments have not been at as high a level as desired is reflected in the fact that whereas the May quota was 8500, only 4643 enlistments were obtained. To spur enlistments, the Air Force reduced its 100 AGCT qualification to 90.

Despite the problems cited above, it is believed that with a vigorous recruiting program, the Services will be able to obtain sufficient manpower to meet 1951 requirements. However, should reenlistments and enlistments fall below these needs, the Selective Service legislation will be available for use whenever the President deems it necessary.

Coast Guard Reserve—The outbreak of warfare in Korea this week, attended by new emphasis on internal security of the United States, is expected to provide final impetus for approval by Congress of a limited Coast Guard Reserve program. Since fiscal year 1947, the Coast Guard repeatedly has called attention to the need for a Reserve organization, specially trained in port security responsibilities. Officials have emphasized the great dangers to port installations and have cited particularly the possibility of atomic explosion. The Navy and the Department of Defense have supported the need for such a Reserve force.

Last year, the Senate, it is recalled, voted $3,500,000 for a Coast Guard Reserve, but a conference committee struck this appropriation from the defense budget. This year, the President asked $4,100,000 for this Reserve force, but the House Appropriations Committee, explaining that there were more urgent needs, knocked this item from the bill. However, on the floor of the House, an amendment was passed providing $1,000,000 for the Coast Guard Reserve.

Presumably, the Senate, having voted $3,500,000 last year, will authorize the $1,000,000 expenditure. Then, the Coast Guard is expected to move quickly to expand its Reserve organization—with particular emphasis on the recruitment of enlisted personnel—in order to provide added security for critical ports throughout the Nation. The Korean situation doubtless will accelerate implementation of the Reserve program.

Military Sea Transport—Today, 1 July, marks the completion, for all practical purposes, of the consolidation of all military ocean transport under the Military Sea Transportation Service. There are being transferred today to the new agency some 33 vessels heretofore engaged in ocean transportation under the Army and based in Hawaii and Japan. Previously on 1 March the Army turned over 72 ships based at United States ports. The merger of the Army and Navy Transport Services was directed last Fall by the Secretary of Defense. In effect it meant the absorption of the Army Transport Service by the Navy. The Military Sea Transportation Service, under the command of Rear Adm. William M. Callaghan, USN, was established 1 Oct. 1949 to provide in a single agency all ocean transportation of personnel and supplies of the Armed Forces. From its establishment it operated Naval transports and later took over the Army ships. Undoubtedly this consolidation of ocean shipping will centralize authority, eliminate duplication and promote economy. Nevertheless, many veteran Army officers, with several tours of overseas duty, will regret the passing of the Army Transport Service. For more than a half century it operated efficiently many fine old ships that carried troops to and from Hawaii, the Philippines and the Panama Canal Zone. Army transports have a magnificent record in peace and war, with an occasional touch of high adventure in typhoons, sea rescues, and air and submarine attacks. The Army Transport Service brings to the Navy a creditable record in some of the finest traditions of service on the sea. In this new duty under the Navy, they may look forward to a broadened field and wider opportunities.

Swims Panama Canal—A West Point cadet, Charles J. McGinn, this week swam the Panama Canal. He completed the trip through the locks in the elapsed time of 36 hours, swimming an average of 7½ miles in eight hours daily. He said he wanted to show what his physical training at the Military Academy had done for him.

Air Transport For Sick—Any patient able to be moved by conventional means may now, with few exceptions, be safely transported by air. Lt. Col. Benjamin A. Strickland, Jr., Director of the Military Medicine Division at the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph AFB, Tex., told the national convention of the American Medical Association 29 June in San Francisco.

Colonel Strickland, who is also Chief of the Department of Air Evacuation at the Air Force school, told association members that from 1942 to 1949, inclusive, the Air Force transported nearly a million and a half patients by air, and that based on this broad experience numerous competent observers have unanimously concluded that almost any movable patient can now safely be transported by aircraft.

"Air evacuation in the armed forces has continued on a relatively large scale since the war," Colonel Strickland said, "and the air evacuation system now operated by the Air Force extends to all areas of the world where our military personnel are located."

Concerning patient reaction to air transportation, Colonel Strickland said that of over 16,000 completed case reports of patients moved in 1949, 30 per cent of which were litter cases, there was only a seven per cent incidence of in-flight complaints or discomfort. Virtually all of these, he added, were of minor nature and were apparently due in some degree to motion sickness caused by rough air. He pointed out that commercial air lines report an incidence of two to five per cent of motion sickness on all flights. And of the seven per cent who reported in-flight complaints or discomfort, 97 per cent were effectively relieved by simple measures administered aboard the aircraft. No patient among the 16,020 included in the 1949 study died in flight, and no flights were terminated because of the appearance of alarming symptoms.

Heads ICAO—Dr. Edward Warner, formerly Assistant Secretary of the U. S. Navy for Air, was unanimously reelected for a three-year term as President of the Council of the International Civil Aviation Organization. The election took place at ICAO's headquarters in Montreal 22 June during the first meeting of the new Council chosen by the ICAO assembly two weeks ago.

Dr. Warner served from 1947 to 1950 as President of the First Council of ICAO, and from 1945 to 1947 as President of the Interim Council of the Provisional International Civil Aviation Organization. He was responsible for much of the preliminary organizational work that went on before the International Aviation Conference was held in Chicago in 1944 for the purpose of setting up an authoritative body to establish standards and controls for the development of post-war civil air transport and attended this conference as a delegate of the United States. The Conference produced the Convention on International Civil Aviation which is ICAO's Charter.

Quartermaster Corps—Lt. Col. James E. Baker, Lt. Col. John D. Hines and Lt. Col. Preston M. Motes now on duty in the Supply Division, Office of the Quartermaster General, Washington, D. C., will pursue the 1950-51 course at The Army War College, Fort Leavenworth, Kans. Lt. Col. Ivan W. Elliott will complete his studies at the Ohio State University and Capt. Robert T. Kranc will complete his studies at the University of Minnesota and report in September 1950 to The Quartermaster Center, Fort Lee, Va.

Lt. Col. Harold V. Fitzgerald, Lt. Col. John D. Linton, Capt. Francis J. Black, Capt. Bernard D. Edmundson and Capt. Edmond H. DeL'Ecluse were retired from active service due to physical disability on 30 June 1950. Lt. Col. Charner W. Powell, Office Chief of Army Field Forces, Fort Monroe, Va., and Maj. William W. Thybony, General Staff, USA, Washington, D. C., will report to Fort Lee, Va., to pursue the Advanced Officers Course beginning in August 1950.

John Paul Jones in Army—Albeit his famous Navy name, John Paul Jones is now on duty with the Army. He's in Company C in the ROTC summer camp at Ft. Meade, Md. The company's supply sergeant has a name more suited for Army life. He is Sgt. Julius Caesar.

Wears Mexican Air Wings—General George C. Kenney, USAF, Commanding General of the Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala., is now entitled to wear the Commander Wings of the Mexican Air Force.

The presentation took place recently in Mexico City and was accompanied by this citation: "By means of a decree issued by the President of the Republic, Mr. Miguel Aleman, the government of Mexico grants General George C. Kenney the commanding rank wings of the Mexican Air Force."

B-36 Icing—At Kelly AFB, Tex., Air Force maintenance personnel, under direction of Col. Fred Bell, have initiated a program to prevent icing on B-36 bombers. Conceived by the Curtiss-Wright Propeller Division, the de-icing modification works by means of piping air heated by the exhaust through ducts into a re-routed hollow shaft near the leading edge of the propeller blade.

Pack Plane—The XC-120 Pack plane, a new military cargo plane which features a detachable fuselage, came from the Fairchild Aircraft Division plant in Hagerstown, Md., last week ready for U. S. Air Force testing. The new plane in effect applies the trailer-truck principle to air transportation. Its fuselage, or "pod" can be detached from the plane-carrier and left on the ground for unloading, while the plane itself flies away for another pre-loaded fuselage.

After a thorough ground test and inspection program by the Air Force's Air Materiel Command Safety Inspection Board, the new plane will probably make its first flight late this month. The plane in effect melds the trailer truck principle with the airplane. It resembles the C-119 Packet—except that its fuselage is detachable from the remainder of the plane. The plane itself—engines, cockpit, booms and tail surfaces—is able to fly without the fuselage, much as the cab of a trailer truck is driven minus its trailer.

Combat Forces Journal—The July issues of the Infantry Journal and the Field Artillery Journal will mark the final publication of these two publications, which will be combined in a Combat Forces Journal to be published for the first time in August. The Infantry Association, founded in 1893, and the Field Artillery Association, organized in 1910, are to be merged in an "Association of the United States Army."

Army Finance Department—Maj. Gen. Eugene M. Foster, USA, the Army Chief of Finance announced this week that Lt. Col. George L. Eatman, GSC, currently assigned to the Office of the Asst. Chief of Staff, G-2, Intelligence, and Lt. Col. Percival S. Brown, GSC, now on duty with the Office of the Asst. Chief of Staff, G-4, Logistics, have been selected to attend the Graduate School of Business Administration, Harvard University, for the purpose of pursuing a two year course in Business Administration beginning in September.

Foreign Military Notes—Russia has sanctioned the creation of an East German naval force. An announcement to that effect said that the East German cabinet decided to create a naval "police" force to protect the Baltic coast, intercept smugglers, protect fishing fleets and aid vessels in distress. Authorities in the Western part of Germany said that Russian approval of the plan was in violation of quadripartite agreements to prevent the revival of German activities in the military fields. Earlier, the East German authorities had set up an Army of between 50-60,000, and announced plans for an air transport fleet.

The Royal Air Force is assigning a Night Fighter team to the Marine Corps Air Station at Cherry Point, N. C., as part of an exchange policy.

The Canadian Army is conducting experiments with an aluminum hut to serve as a lightweight, easily-constructed barracks for Arctic use. The hut, designed to withstand winds up to 100 miles per hour with gusts to 125 miles, has provisions for economic heating at temperatures as low as 65 degrees below zero.

Ready for Guard Change-over—With the new power given the President in the draft extension act whereby he may call reserve components into active Federal Service, New York state is prepared to start organizing a State Guard within a few days. Governor Dewey stated that it is "entirely possible that the National Guard could be called out any moment and integrated into the national Armed Forces." The Governor said that his organization has been planning for six months on how a new State Guard for home protection could be brought into being in such an event. The New York National Guard, under command of Maj. Gen. Karl A. Hausauer, is now almost at maximum strength, having 27,052 men. Every officer, Governor Dewey said, has been asked to suggest the names of two World War II veterans who might take his place in a state guard.

USNA Graduation Leave—Representative Fulton (R-Pa) became quite concerned this week when he discovered that the leave given this year's graduates of the U. S. Naval Academy is being charged against their future leave instead of being uncumbered as is that given the U. S. Military Academy graduates. He told the House that he was under the impression that the Congress had passed a bill to correct this inequality. Replying to him, Representative Cole (R-NY), an officer of the Naval Reserve, explained: "That was the plain intent of the Congress and that is expressly a part of the act itself. I understand with respect to the men who graduated this year that plans had already been made with respect to their assignments so that it would have substantially disrupted the organization and administration of the Navy personnel if they had been given 60 days upon graduation; however, arrangements have been made so that they will get the equivalent of the 60-day leave within the coming 12-month period."

General Reserve Tests—The speed and efficiency with which the Army's General Reserve units would be able to move to a port of embarkation for overseas duty in the event of an emergency will be determined during tests to be held throughout the United States after 1 July.

The General Reserve includes those Regular Army troops in the United States whose primary mission is to be trained, equipped and maintained in a state of readiness for immediate use in an offensive or defensive role. Troops taking part in the test will not actually be moved to a port of embarkation. This phase of the operations will be simulated by moving to a bivouac area near the posts to which they are normally assigned.

At unspecified dates after 1 July, Commanding Generals of the six Army areas in the United States and the Military District of Washington will issue orders similar to those which would actually be issued if the General Reserve had to be sent to a port of embarkation. Unit commanders will then proceed to make certain of their personnel and equipment needs as if a genuine movement were to take place. All units will be expected to complete the simulated movement to the port within two weeks.

ORC Training Program—Preparation of a three-year training program designed to bring Army Organized Reserve Corps units to the highest possible state of readiness is nearing completion by the staff of General Mark W. Clark, Chief of Army Field Forces at Fort Monroe, Va.

In announcing the program General Clark said it will give America "a hard core of highly trained reservists, accustomed to working together, ready for instant mobilization and action in an emergency. This means the end of the 'paper soldier' in our active reserves. We are going to prepare every man for a job."

"Our M-Day plans at the present time call for the Organized Reserve Corps to furnish a high percentage of our service support and combat support units," General Clark stated. "These are the troops we must use in the very first days of war, should we be forced into one."

General Clark delegated responsibility for preparing the training program to Brig. Gen. William B. Bradford, Chief of the Civilian Components Division, G-3 Section, Office, Chief of Army Field Forces.

Industrial College Graduation—Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson this week described as "nip and tuck" the vital race for supremacy in the scientific research and development of superior weapons and warned that "all we can do and must do are doing every day is to persist in our efforts to stay ahead of the pack."

Speaking to 120 members of the graduating class of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces on 27 June, Secretary Johnson said "there is no offense for which a defense cannot be built, no weapon developed whose effect cannot be reduced by some counter weapon." He said "we must go on developing machines and techniques that can raise havoc among enemies and at the same time concentrate on counter-measures to lessen or destroy their effect upon us if an enemy happens to possess similar weapons."

Regarding the increasing importance of logistics in modern warfare, Secretary Johnson maintained that "no one who neglects the strategy and tactics of supply will be able to reach top level positions of responsibility among our Armed Forces." His remarks were addressed to the 45 Army, 27 Navy, 40 Air Force and three Marine Corps officers graduating from the top level school. Five civilians were also in the class.

Army Bagpipe Band—At the Presidio of San Francisco, the Army has organized a Pipe Band, consisting of 1 bass drum, two snare drums and nine bagpipes. C.W.O. Millard F. Crary directs the pipers, trained by a San Francisco Scottish organization.

Name Air Engine Plant

The name of the Ranger Engines Division of the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corporation, located at Farmingdale, L. I., N. Y., has been changed to Fairchild Engine Division, according to an announce by Richard S. Boutelle, president.

THE Chief of Staff of the Air Force, General Hoyt Vandenberg, and Mrs. Vandenberg had expected a vacation outing to New England, either in Maine or on the South Shore of Massachusetts, but have postponed their leave until a more propitious time.

The Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Thomas Finletter had hoped to be at Bar Harbor over the Fourth of July, but now the Secretary, like others, is uncertain as to his future plans. Mrs. Finletter left Washington over the past week-end, before news from Korea had arrived and will probably adhere to her former plans which were to remain at the Maine resort through the Summer, with visits from the Secretary when possible.

Mrs. Arthur G. Trudeau flew from Washington last week with her daughter, Mrs. Francis B. Kane, Jr., and three grandchildren, for Fort Leavenworth, Kans., where General Trudeau is deputy Commander of the new Army War College.

Mrs. Kane and the children will spend the Summer with her parents before joining her husband, Lieutenant Kane, who is a student at Tulane University.

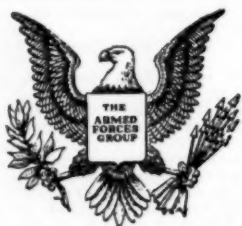

The Kane children will be the fourth generation since Brig. Gen. Walter D. Smith, Ret., to live in the quarters now occupied by General and Mrs. Trudeau. Arthur G. Trudeau, Jr., a Princeton student, will also spend his vacation with his family.

After graduating from Holton Arms School for Girls, Washington, D. C., Miss Nancy Shaw, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Lawrence Shaw has joined her parents in Caracas, Venezuela, where Colonel Shaw is stationed at the American Embassy as Military Attache to Venezuela.

Mr. Leonard Isaacson, grandfather of Nancy, who lives in Grays Harbor, Wash., journeyed East for his granddaughter's graduation, later accompanying her to New York where she sailed for Venezuela via the "Santa Paula" of the Grace Line.

Rear Adm. Osborne B. Hardison, USN, and Mrs. Hardison gave a cocktail-buffet party to say good-bye to their friends and to introduce the Admiral's successor, Rear Adm. Milton E. Miles and Mrs. Miles. Admiral Hardison has been assigned to Guam.

The party was held 23 June at the Army and Navy Club. From then on it has been a round of farewell gatherings

Weddings and Engagements

Chaplain, Philippines Command (Air Force) and Thirteenth Air Force, performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was born in the Philippines, was interned with other American civilians at Santo Tomas University in Manila during the Japanese occupation.

The couple plan to honeymoon at Baguio. Captain and Mrs. Brandstrom will return to the United States in July. His new station is not yet known.

Col. and Mrs. DuVal C. Watkins, USA-Ret., announce the engagement of their daughter Anne Ophelia, to Mr. James Thomas Sheperd of Atlanta, Ga. The wedding will take place in Monticello, Georgia 22 July.

Miss Nancy Carrington Clement wore an exquisite long sleeve gown of ivory Chantilly lace over satin when she became the bride of Lt. (jg) Donald Jos. Madden, (MC) USNR, 17 June, in the chapel at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

The bride is the daughter of Maj. Gen. William T. Clement, USMC, Depot Commanding officer, and she entered the chapel on his arm. The ceremony was performed by Chaplain M. J. H. MacInnis, USNR, before an altar banked with white flowers and gleaming candles. The bride made a beautiful picture in the becoming gown fashioned with tight fitting bodice and billowing skirt. A fingertip veil fell from a net bonnet trimmed in seed pearls and completing her ensemble was a cascade bouquet of pure white gardenias.

Miss Anne Willis Cates of Washington, D. C., daughter of the Commandant of the Marine Corps, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Sally Beckwith, Maurine Erskine, Sue McHenry, and Riley Ann Sebre.

The Hon. Ray S. Madden, Member of Congress, and uncle of the groom, served as best man.

The ceremony was followed by a brilliant reception in the formal gardens back of the Clement's quarters. Three hundred guests gathered beside a colorful pool where they were met by members of the wedding party, Mrs. Clement, who was gowned in wedgewood blue with matching maline hat and accessories, and by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Madden, of Omaha, Neb. who came West for their son's marriage.

After a brief honeymoon the bride and groom will be at home in San Diego where the officer is attached to the Marine Recruit Depot Dispersary.

Miss Marjorie Downing McKinnon was married 21 June at Savannah, Ga., to Capt. Henry Read Lambert, USAF.

The bride had her sister, Mrs. Thomas B. Glendinning, as matron of honor, and Miss Jeanne LeHardy, Mrs. Louis D. Myre of Paducah, Ky., Miss Toy Curry of Milledgeville, Miss Mary Alice Lord of Brunswick, as bridesmaids, with Miss Celia Williams as junior bridesmaid.

Captain Lambert had his brother, Col. A. Garey Lambert of Austin, Tex., as best man. Ushers and groomsmen were Brailford Nightingale, Thomas B. Glendinning, William McKinnon, Jr., Bernard Williams, Gen. Frank O'D. Hunter, Col. Robert C. Calhoun, Capt. Lucius Beebe, Capt. Collins Hamilton, Lt. Edmond Rafalco, Lt. William Frazier and Lt. Robert Chamberlain.

Escorted by her grandfather, P. Miller Nightingale, the bride was lovely in her wedding gown of pale ivory tulle and French Chantilly lace over bridal satin. The fitted bodice of sheer lace over satin, was fashioned with an off-shoulder neckline and long sleeves, ending in points over the wrists. The full flared skirt was of ivory tulle and extended into a long circular train. Her wedding veil was of exquisite heirloom lace over illusion, draped to form a Juliet cap which was caught across the back with a spray of orange blossoms, and fell the length of the train. She carried a cascade bouquet with sprays of lilies of the valley and stephanotis, centered with white orchids. Her only ornament was a single strand of family pearls, the gift of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence D. Haefner of Saint Louis, Mo., announce the engagement of their daughter, Gloria Jean Haefner to Lt. Robert Dana McBride, son of Col. and Mrs. Glen Clovis McBride. Colonel McBride has just returned from Tokyo, Japan, where he was stationed with General Headquarters, Far East Command, and is now en route to Dallas, Texas, where he will be Advisor to the National Guard.

Miss Haefner is a graduate of Saint Elizabeth Academy, Saint Louis. She attended the University of Missouri for the past three years. Her sorority is Alpha Phi.

Lieutenant McBride, an alumnus of Oklahoma Military Academy, graduated from the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, New York, with the class of 1950. He is assigned to the 11th Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky.

The First Presbyterian Church, Norfolk, Va., was the scene of a pretty wedding 10 June, when Miss Katherine Johnston Loughhead, daughter of Mrs. Johnston Loughhead, became the bride of Lt. Oral Raymond Swigart, jr., USMC, son of Capt. Oral Raymond Swigart, USN, and Mrs. Swigart.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Capt. Frank Herbert Newton, jr., USN. She wore a wedding gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with a chifon yoke, long sleeves pointed over the hands and the full skirt extending into a long train. Her finger-tip veil of imported illusion fell from a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations centered with a white orchid. She wore a mother-of-pearl necklace, an heirloom in the bride's family.

Miss Jane Antoinette Stiles, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Dolly Davis, of Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Suzanne Nestor, Miss Edith Shepherd Brooks and Miss Mary Upshur Elliott.

Captain Swigart, father of the bridegroom, was best man. The groomsmen were 2d Lt. W. N. Vest, USMC, of Stevensville, Md.; Edward Bilpuch, of Adah, Pa.; Midshipman J. E. Baker, jr., USN, of Pensacola, Fla.; Ens. Royal Shannanhouse, USN, of Pittsboro, N. C.; Robert Williams Swigart, brother of the bridegroom, and Douglas Thompson of Norfolk, Va.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Capt. Lloyd L. Leech, jr., USA, of Fort Bragg, N. C., and Mrs. Leech, cousin of the bride; Cdr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Chester O. Ensing, jr., of Greensboro, N. C.; Lt. Cdr. C. E. Emrick and Mrs. Emrick of Charleston, S. C.; Mrs. C. E. Groesbeck of Columbia City, Ind.; Mrs. W. T. Williams of Annapolis, Md.; Mrs. R. F. Going and Richard Going, jr., of Washington, D. C.; Midshipman James Ellis Baker, jr., U. S. Naval Academy.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lawrence Walsh of Portland, Me., announce the engagement of their daughter, Eleanor Ann, to Lt. Col. Albert G. Marin, USAR.

Miss Walsh attended schools in Portland and in Lake Forest, Ill., and also attended the University of Vienna and the Berlitz school of languages in Vienna, where she took the Russian language course. She went to Europe in the summer of 1946 as a court reporter for the war crimes trials held in Germany, and later became an Economic Intelligence Analyst with the Office of the Director of Intelligence in Vienna, Austria.

Colonel Marin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Marin, of South Brewer, Me. He served with the 82d Airborne Division during the war. He later served as G-4 of Hq. Cmd., USFA, in Vienna, returning to the United States during April of this year, where he has again been assigned to the 82d Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N. C.

Miss Walsh will be remembered in Washington circles as the niece of Col. and Mrs. Raymond G. Stanton, now serving in Tokyo, Japan. She was employed for several years in the Operations Division of the War Department.

The wedding will take place at Fort Bragg, N. C. during the month of August.

In a wedding of Service-wide interest, Miss Nancy Louise Misson, daughter of Rear Adm. and Mrs. Clinton Alonzo Misson, USN-Ret., was married 21 June in Washington, D. C., to Mr. George Randolph Cooper, jr., son of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cooper, USN.

Given in marriage by her father, the lovely bride wore an ivory satin gown with train, with sheer yoke and bands of imported lace at the off-shoulder neckline. She wore a helmet-shaped cap of lace to match the dress, with a full-length veil of ivory illusion.

Miss Anne Josephine Misson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Reuben F. Woodall of Glen Burnie, Md., was matron of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Arthur H. Page III, Miss Virginia Summerlin, Miss Jane Lingo and Miss Elaine Trimble, all of Washington.

Mr. Donald W. Davis, jr., New Britain, Conn., was best man. The ushers were Lt. Comdr. Reuben F. Woodall, USN, Mr. John Brumbaugh, Washington; and Mr. Eugene Biddle, Mr. Lane McGovern and Mr. Bruce Morrell, all of Massachusetts.

The couple will live at Cambridge, Mass., while Mr. Cooper completes studies at the Harvard Law School. The bride is a graduate of Sidwell Friends School, Washington, and attended Vassar College. She is a graduate also of George Washington University and a member of Pi Beta Phi and the Junior League of Washington.

During World War II, the bridegroom served as a naval officer in the Pacific.

Miss Peggy Lou Stika, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert W. Stika, USA-Ret., was married 17 March in Chicago to Mr. Otis Leroy Walter, jr.

The bride studied at Northwestern University, where she affiliated with Gamma Phi Beta. Her husband, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Walter, sr., of Portland, Oreg., is a graduate of Northwestern University, from which he holds bachelor's and master's degrees. His fraternity is Phi Gamma Delta. The couple will live in Portland.

Miss Mary Louise Gillette was married last month in Los Angeles, Calif., to Comdr. Roland W. Schumann, jr. The bride is the daughter of Commo. Norman C. Gillette, USN-Ret., and Mrs. Gillette, 216 Roswell Avenue, Long Beach, Calif., and Commander Schumann is the son of Capt. Roland W. Schumann, USN-Ret., and Mrs. Schumann of Washington, D. C.

The radiant bride was escorted down the aisle on the arm of her father and was gowned in filmy French silk marquisette with embroidered butterflies scattered over the skirt and short train. Her shoulder-length veil fell from a small net cap. She carried white orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Bliss Schumann, sister of the bridegroom was maid of honor. Lt. Comdr. John J. Farley served as best man.

Mrs. Schumann attended Georgetown Visitation Convent and Convent of the Sacred Heart, Washington, D. C.; Miss Barry's Foreign School in Florence, Italy; and Northwestern University, where she was affiliated with Delta Delta Delta sorority.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the Officers' Club. Assisting in the serving were the Messdames A. R. Scrivener, F. C. Scrivener, C. R. Jones, K. B. Schilling, B. F. Chadwick, C. H. Smith, J. M. Ivy, and A. W. Scrivener. The Misses Ann Moulder and Polly Grona were in charge of the bride's book.

Out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Scrivener of Port Lavaca, Tex.; Mrs. George Hill of Tampico, Mexico; Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Austin of Laredo, Tex.; Mrs. John Dolch of Iowa City, Ia.; Mrs. James Moore and Miss Mary Jo Moore of Laredo, Tex.; Mr. Web Maddox of Ft. Worth, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Scrivener of Dinero, Tex.; Mrs. A. W. Scrivener of Taft, Tex.; and Mrs. Arthur Smith of Odem, Tex.

The couple will honeymoon in Wyoming before reporting to New York to sail for their station in Puerto Rico.

Hadley Chapel, St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Syracuse, N. Y., was the setting 20 June for the marriage of Miss Carolyn Margaret Crenshaw, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Benjamin Mills Crenshaw of 501 DeWitt Street, and Rene Victor Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fenimore Cooper of Poughkeepsie. The Rev. Alfred Martin officiated.

The bride was attired in a white organza gown made with imported Swiss embroidery, square neckline, short sleeves and a panel of embroidery down the front. Her Dutch cap, trimmed with matching embroidery, held a finger-tip veil and she carried lilies-of-the-valley centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Charles Robert Tully of Schenectady was matron of honor for her sister, and Robert H. Hoover was best man for his cousin. Charles Hawk, Lester Stoddard, George Lewett and Donald Reiman were ushers. Marilyn McComb was flower girl and Dennis McComb was ring bearer.

A reception took place in the home of the bride's parents before the couple left on a trip to Moon Lake, Theresa.

The bride attended Ohio State University and is a member of Alpha Phi sorority.

Mr. Cooper was graduated last week from Syracuse University. He was president of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity, captain of Scabbard and Blade and manager of the Varsity track team. He was designated a Distinguished Military Graduate and will receive a regular commission in the Air Force.

Gowned in traditional white satin with chapel-length train and an heirloom rose-point lace bertha of her maternal grandmother, Miss Anne Borntraeger became the bride of Mr. John Logan Orser, son of Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Marshall Orser of Kalispell, Mont., on Saturday 17 June. She also wore a finger-tip veil of illusion caught to a halo of heirloom rose-point lace worn by her mother, and carried the rose-point lace handkerchief of her paternal grandmother with a white prayerbook, from which streamers of lilies-of-the-valley cascaded. Miss Borntraeger is the daughter of Mrs. Henry Winter Borntraeger of 24 Livermore Road, Wellesley Hills, Mass., and of the late Colonel Borntraeger.

The simple candlelight ceremony was performed at 8:00 o'clock by the Rev. William B. Rice of the Wellesley Hills Unitarian Church, at the home of the bride's grandfather, Dr. Arthur Judson Oldham of 24 Livermore Road, who gave her in marriage. The wedding march was played by Mrs. William H. Vogler of Wellesley Hills, and the service took place against a background of greens with white flowers and a tall candelabra on either side. A reception followed immediately.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Jacqueline Hart of Chestnut Hill, her roommate at Dana Hall.

The best man was Mr. John Corliss Graham of Schenectady, N. Y. Mr. Walter C. Wadell of Manchester, Conn., and Mr. Harold D. Chaney of Washington, D. C., were the ushers.

Miss Borntraeger was graduated from Dana Hall School, Pine Manor Junior College and Katherine Gibbs School. Mr. Orser attended Montana State College and received his B.S. degree from Babson Institute in 1949. After a short wedding trip, the couple will live at 140 Weston Road, Wellesley.

The marriage of Miss Matilda Hobbs Betts, daughter of Mrs. Edward Chambers Betts and the late Brigadier General Betts, and Mr. William Franklin Radcliff was solemnized 17 June at Ft. Myer, Va., Chapel.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. John D. Higgins of Birmingham, Ala., wore a gown of ivory satin and duchess lace which had been worn by several members of her family. Her pearl necklace and brooch was the wedding gift from her great-grandfather to her great-grandmother.

Miss Ann Betts was her sister's maid of honor and Mrs. John Poulson, the former Ann Stamps, who had been the bride's roommate at Vassar, was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Misses Elizabeth Steuart, Barbara Greene and Elizabeth Warfield, all of Washington, and Miss Elizabeth Higgins of Birmingham.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. Radcliff of Fredericksburg, Ind., had as his best man, Mr. William Mills of Chattanooga, Tenn., and his ushers were Walter Rodgers and Lloyd Wife of Long Island, Don Duval of Chevy Chase, Orville Bathe of Arlington and John M. Moore of Baltimore.

The bride is a graduate of Holton Arms and Vassar. One of her forebears was Col. Richard Lee, Secretary of the Colony of Virginia in Colonial times. The groom, who was a major in the Adjutant General's Department during World War II, graduated from Yale and is now a law student at the University of Indiana. The couple will reside in Bloomington, Ind., after 1 Sept.

Miss Peggy Joyce Brown, daughter of Major and Mrs. Paul C. Brown of Manhattan and Fort Riley, Kans., became the bride of Lt. Charles Gray Roebuck, son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Roebuck, Colerain, N. C., at a double-ring wedding ceremony in the Post Chapel, Ft. Riley, 23 June, performed by Chaplain G. L. Alderman.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, who is the Club Officer at Fort Riley. She wore an ivory slipper satin gown fitted with flared skirt and train, white lace bolero with a crown headdress of seed pearls with fingertip veil and a collar of large pearls with matching earrings. Her shoes were of white satin. The bride's bouquet was a cascade of red tulle roses with streamers of rosebuds and green leaves. Her going away outfit was a two piece beige linen dress with navy blue accessories and a corsage of red roses. Following the ceremony and reception, the couple left on a honeymoon trip to Estes Park, Colorado.

Miss Danna Foltz of Manhattan was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Genevieve Latta and Miss Marie McIntyre, both of Manhattan. The candle lighters were Miss Jane Fulton and Miss Bonnie McIntyre, also of Manhattan.

The bride who was born in Honolulu, attended Sacred Hearts Academy and Farrington High Schools there and graduated from Manhattan High School in 1949 and had attended Kansas State College for one year majoring in Art and in the department of Home Economics.

Lt. Roebuck is a graduate of Colerain High School with the class of 1942 and he also attended North Carolina State College, Raleigh, N. C., and was a senior student in Civil Engineering at the University of Virginia at Charlottesville in 1945 when he entered the U. S. Military Academy at West Point and graduated with the class of 1949. He is also a 1949 graduate of the Officers Basic Class at Fort Riley. He recently graduated from the Armored Cavalry School at Fort Knox and after a one-month leave will report to Fort Dix, N. J., for overseas assignment in Germany where he will join the Constabulary.

Lt. Robert Schwarz was best man at the ceremony and ushers were Lt. Ted Boland and Lt. Raymond Battreall, classmates of the groom.

Col. David Adams Taylor, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Taylor, of Elizabethtown, Ky., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Louise, to 2d Lt. Robert Wilson Noce, USA, son of Maj. Gen. Daniel Noce, USA, and Mrs. Noce, of Heidelberg, Germany.

Miss Taylor was graduated from Michigan State College in 1948, where she was a member of Chi Omega sorority. Lieutenant Noce attended MIT, where he was affiliated with Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, and was graduated from USMA in 1949. He has just completed the Officers' Basic Course at The Armored School, Fort Knox, and is assigned to EUCOM.

The wedding will take place in the late summer in Heidelberg.

meeting in San Francisco, Calif., the week beginning 26 June. Three officers from Brooke will take part in the program.

Col. Milton S. Thompson, chief of the hospital's Orthopedic Service, will read a paper prepared by the late Dr. Walter G. Stuck of San Antonio, and himself, "Complications of Intra-medullary Fixation of Fractures of the Femur," on 29 June. Before going to San Francisco, Col. Thompson will attend a medical association meeting, American Society for Trauma Society, in Salt Lake City, Utah. Lt. Col. Edwin J. Pulaski, chief of the Surgical Research Unit at Brooke, will lead the discussions on two papers, one given by Dr. E. J. Evans of the Medical College of Virginia, "Treatment of High Intensity Thermal Burns," and "Chloromycetin and Aureomycin in Surgical Infections," presented by Dr. W. A. Altier, of the College of Medicine, University of Cincinnati. "Some Factors Influencing the Effects of Anoxic Anoxia," published by the Mayo Clinic, will be discussed by Lt. Col. Fred C. Dye, chief of the Anesthesia Section.

FITZSIMONS GENERAL HOSP., COLO. Sixty children from Fitzsimons General Hospital, their families and friends attended a joint meeting of all scouting units last week at the hospital's Scout Club Room. The ceremony, which was the first meeting of its kind held in this area, brought together units of the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Cubs and Brownies.

Acting as master of ceremonies for the meeting was the Honorable Joseph E. Cooke, U. S. District Judge. Other notable guests included the hospital's commanding general, Brig. Gen. Harry D. Offutt; Mr. E. E. Skinner, Chief Scout Executive, Denver Council, and Col. Howard W. Doan, Fitzsimons' Deputy Commander.

FT. KNOX, KY. Lt. Gen. Sir Richard Nelson Gale, director general of military training of the British Army, arrived at Ft. Knox recently for an inspection of training facilities at The Armored Center. A battery fired a 15-round salute for General Gale as he stepped from his plane and was greeted by Maj. Gen. Wm. G. Livesay, commander of the Armored Center. Also present was another British officer, Maj. Gen. Dudley Ward, commander of the Staff College at Camberley, England, who arrived at Ft. Knox Thursday.

Ft. Knox was amply represented at the annual reunion of the 4th Armored Division at Pine Camp, N. Y., 24 and 25 June. Eight veterans of that famous World War II outfit attended from Ft. Knox. They are Maj. Ralph M. Click, Maj. Charles Steel, and Maj. John Rankin, all of C&S Dept., The Armored School; Maj. Richard Irving, SOC, The Armored School; Capt. John D. While in Georgia, Mrs. Stark was honored with a beautifully-appointed tea, given by Mrs. Ralph F. Stearley, wife of Major General Stearley, Commanding General of the Fourteenth Air Force.

FT. LEE, VA. Lt. Col. John O. Weaver, who has since August 1949 been an instructor in the Administration Group of The Quartermaster School has replaced Lt. Col. Joble J. Dixon as School Secretary. Although now a Regular Army officer, Colonel Weaver did not enter the service until 1941. In civilian life he was employed by the Columbia Broadcasting System as a news writer and, later as Director of Public Affairs. It was in this capacity that he was loaned by the network to the Office of the Secretary of War as an "Expert Consultant on Propaganda," a short time later being granted a direct commission as a captain in the Army.

Maj. Boulton B. Miller, Executive Officer of the Administration Department, The Adjutant General's School has been appointed a member of the Army Field Forces Inspection Team. He will inspect functions of the Adjutant General's Department and the Clerk Typist course (MOS 405) at the Fourth Infantry Division, Ft. Ord, California.

PETERSBURG, VA. With Lt. Marshall Johnson, chapter president as host, 100 members of Crater Chapter, Reserve Officers' Association of Petersburg, Va., their wives and guests enjoyed an informal summer dance "on the patio" at the officers' recreational center, Ft. Lee, Va. on the evening of 23 June. Maj. Gen. Roy C. L. Graham, Commanding General, Ft. Lee, and Mrs. Graham were guests of honor though ceremony was held to a minimum. Lt. Col. Carl M. Bortz, Vice President for Army affairs, Department of Virginia, R.O.A., was general chairman for the dance.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. There has been much social activity in Marine Corps circles recently and among the gayest of the parties was one given on 22 June by the First Combat Service Group. The affair, a cocktail party, held in the 13 Club, Camp Pendleton, was in honor of Col. and Mrs. B. F. Holcomb, who have just reported at the Camp and Col. and Mrs. J. H. Cook and Col. and Mrs. G. E. Hendricks, who are soon to depart for other Marine Corps posts. Lt. Col. and Mrs. Frank L. Kilmartin also entertained this week. They are leaving 1 July for Camp Lejeune, N. C., and they bid farewell to their friends over cocktails on Friday evening. Another Marine couple, who are being entertained by San Diego area friends are Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Hayne D. Boyden, of Asheville, N. C., who arrived on the West coast via transport. They are guests of Mrs. Boyden's brother-in-law and sister, Col. and Mrs. Ralph D. Leach, of El Cajon, Calif.

Sedgwick; Miss Delores Derfuss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Derfuss; and Thomas Twohey, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Twohey.

CAMP STONEMAN, CALIF. A parchment scroll signifying life-membership in the Camp Stoneman Woman's Club was presented to Mrs. David Blacklock in behalf of the officers' wives group, which she organized and has served in the capacity of honorary president during the past season, by Mrs. Harold R. Johnson, acting president, at a farewell tea honoring the post's first lady, 22 June. Gifts of a pair of hand-wrought china lamps to be added to her cherished collection of antiques, and an antique gold bracelet were presented to the very popular Post Commander's wife as a remembrance token from the group, by Mrs. Francis J. Clune. Mrs. Clune, speaking for the post officers' wives, graciously thanked Mrs. Blacklock for the very active part she has taken in the organization of the Woman's Club, the Junior Club, the planning of the new Service Club and the Officers' Mess—all accomplished for the benefit of this post during the past year, and for her very gracious interest and active participation in every phase of Camp Stoneman social life. The committee hosting the social was headed by Mrs. Leo Rogers and Mrs. Harold Johnson and assisted by Mrs. Charles K. Reger, Mrs. Harry M. Garvine, Mrs. A. J. Richards, Mrs. John T. Cox, Mrs. Richard Surles, and Mrs. John P. Knielmer.

FT. EUSTIS, VA. Graduation exercises were held 25 June for 17 Gray Ladies and 6 Staff Aides, all members of the Volunteer Services of the Newport News-Warwick County Chapter of the American Red Cross. Col. Harold R. MAXWELL AFB, ALA. Two brothers on duty with the Air Force were graduated last month from Air Force educational institutions, one from the top United States Air Force School, and the other from the basic officer course. Col. Murray A. Bywater was graduated from the Air University's Air War College at Maxwell AFB, Ala., Friday, 16 June. His brother, Joseph C. Bywater, completed the Officer Candidate School at Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Tex., 23 June, and will be commissioned a second lieutenant.

ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, MD. Col. Robert K. Haskell, director of The Ordnance School will transfer 1 July to the Watertown Arsenal where he will be assigned as Special Project Officer in the Fire Control Section.

MATHER FIELD, CALIF. After more than 30 years of commissioned service with various components of the Air Service, Air Corps, and U.S. Air Force, Col. Cecil E. Archer, Deputy Wing Commander of Mather AFB, has retired from active duty. Colonel Archer has been at Mather since 5 Nov. 1947.

GETTYSBURG, PA. William R. McKenney, son of Col. and Mrs. Alfred E. McKenney, Int., USA, has received an appointment to the U. S. Military Academy and will enter on 5 July. Colonel McKenney is at present P.M.S. and T. at Gettysburg College but will soon leave for overseas duty.

CLARK AFB, PHILIPPINES. It was "Anchors Aweigh" day on Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines for the Officers' Wives at their monthly meeting and luncheon for June. Navy wives whose husbands are stationed on Clark AFB with the VR-21 Navy Detachment planned the whole program. Navy "Juniors," Army "Brats" and Air Force "Fledglings" provided all of the excellent talent for the program. The first and second-grade children, trained and directed by Mrs. Paul D. Marr, opened the show with four band numbers, performed on drums, cymbals and toy xylophone.

Twenty-five Navy Officers' wives from the U. S. Naval Station, Sangley Point, came up for the occasion as guests of the Clark AFB Officers' wives. Clark AFB Navy wives who stage-managed the program were Mrs. Lynn J. Corrie, Mrs. Gilbert C. Gayler, Mrs. Howard C. Hansen, Mrs. Maynard W. Kouns, Mrs. Marr, Mrs. Edward P. Palm, Mrs. Jack W. Peffey and Mrs. Herbert M. Young.

WEST POINT, N. Y. An original oil painting of Maj. Gen. George Washington Goethals by the well-known artist, Mr. Robert Fawcett of Westport, Conn., was formally presented 29 June to the U. S. Military Academy. The presentation ceremony coincided with the 92d anniversary of General Goethals' birth. The painting, now owned by the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company, will be presented on behalf of the company by Mr. Manuel Camps, General Agent, New York City. Col. Robert G. Ward, Acting Superintendent, received the gift on behalf of the Military Academy.

Armored School Graduation

Graduates of the Armored Officer Advanced Class and Armored Officer Basic Class No. 1—names are published below—at the Armored School, Ft. Knox, Ky., were told recently by General Mark W. Clark that in event of emergency the Nation must be ready to put troops in the field more rapidly than ever before.

Praising unification progress, the Chief of Army Field Forces said, "we must give notice to the world that we intend to have a strong military team to preserve our way of life."

General Clark addressed his remarks to the 373 officers comprising the two graduating classes. He was introduced by Maj. Gen. William G. Livesay, commanding general of Ft. Knox. Brig. Gen. Thomas L. Harrold, assistant commandant of the Armored School, made the opening remarks.

The following are the names of graduates:

Obituaries

Capt. E. G. Hakansson, MC, USN-Ret.
Funeral services for Capt. Erik Gosta Hakansson, MC, USN-Ret., were held at Arlington National Cemetery 22 June. Captain Hakansson, 63, died 19 June at the Naval Hospital, Chelsea, Mass., after a brief illness.

Captain Hakansson was born in Smaland, Sweden, and received his preliminary and pre-medical education in that country. He received the degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1915 at the University of Illinois Medical School, and served his internship at Cook County Hospital in Chicago.

He was first appointed as an Assistant Surgeon in the Naval Reserve Force in February, 1917, transferred to the Regular Navy two months later, and advanced periodically through the various ranks of the Medical Corps to that of Captain, which he attained on 1 Jan. 1942.

In 1941 he was transferred to the USS Solace as Chief of Medicine and was aboard that vessel during the attack on Pearl Harbor. He was later awarded the Navy Unit Commendation for this duty. After a short tour of duty in the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery he was assigned in 1943 as Medical Officer in Command of the Naval Medical Research Institute, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., with additional duty as Chief of the Research Division of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery. During this time many important contributions to the field of medicine and the medical aspects of naval warfare were made by scientists under his direction. For his outstanding performance of these duties until the end of the war, Captain Hakansson was awarded a letter of commendation by the Secretary of the Navy. He was transferred to the retired list for physical disability on 1 Oct. 1948.

He was a member of the American Medical Association, the American Society of Tropical Medicine, the Academy of Tropical Medicine, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Dorothy Elizabeth Hakansson, and a daughter, Mrs. Rhonda Elizabeth Pearson. His official home was RFD No. 10, Richmond, Va.

Lt. Col. Robert Coker, USA-Ret.

Lt. Col. Robert Coker, USA-Ret., died 10 June at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex. He was retired for physical disability in 1934.

Colonel Coker is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Nunn of San Antonio, and a son, Robert Howard Coker of Indianapolis. Colonel Coker's wife was the late Alice Elizabeth Coker, sister of Mrs. Arthur T. Dalton, who is the wife of Lt. Col. Dalton, USA-Ret., 8 Williams Street, Salem, Mass.

Colonel Coker entered the Army as a second lieutenant in 1908. After overseas service during World War I, he transferred to the Air Service and held the rating of balloon pilot. His last active duty was as Assistant Air Officer of the 8th Corps Area.

Col. James M. White, USA-Ret.

Col. James Madison White, USA-Ret., a veteran of 42 years' service in the Infantry with service in the Philippines and in both World Wars, died at the Veterans Hospital at Fayetteville, Ark., 22 June. He had been in bad health for about a year.

Colonel White, born in the State of New York in 1881, enlisted in the Army in 1901 and was appointed a second lieutenant in 1911, a major in 1918, a colonel in 1939 and was retired in 1940.

In 1926 he graduated from the General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kans. He served as Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Arkansas from 1932 until 1938. In 1942 he was recalled to active duty and was again ordered to the University of Arkansas as Commandant of the Army units there.

Interment was in the National Cemetery at Fayetteville, Ark.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ruth McCarthy White, of the home at 3 Mt. Nord, Fayetteville, and one daughter, Mrs. Helen White Proctor, of Mobile, Ala.

Steel Industry Ready

Incident to the eruption of hostilities in Korea and the danger that the war might spread beyond that corner of Asia, the Iron Age, an authoritative trade publication, declares that the nation's steel industry is ready to meet any demand.

The industry, it is noted, has reached its highest capacity and production in history. Operating now at 101.5 per cent of rated capacity, it has set a new record for sustained output, with a production rate at or above 100 per cent of capacity for eleven consecutive weeks. Iron Age states:

"Even allowing for summer shutdowns the industry is threatening to surpass its best previous record of 89,641,000 tons, produced in the war year of 1944. It has a good chance to reach the mythical 90-million-ton year for the first time in history."

The magazine adds that one reason for the outlook for a record-breaking year is the fact that before the end of 1950 the nation will have about 102 million tons of annual steel ingot capacity. This expansion is made necessary by the continually increasing demand for steel products, including automobiles and construction materials.

In economic circles the steel industry is generally regarded as the barometer of business. If the forecast of the Iron Age for the industry for the remainder of the year is accurate the general business outlook would appear to be excellent. During the Wall street flurry this week resulting from the Korean crisis there was brisk trading in steel shares.

Test New Vehicle

Mr. Powell Crosley, President of Crosley Motor Co., accompanied by Mr. Lee Herman, company engineer, was at the Air Proving Ground, Eglin AFB, Fla., last week to participate in tests of the new Crosley all-purpose vehicle, called the Farm-O-Road.

The Air Proving Ground test program includes studies concerning transportability of the vehicle in bomber type aircraft and its use as an all purpose line vehicle.

Test New Trainer

The North American T-28 Trainer is undergoing tests at the Air Proving Ground, Eglin AFB, Fla., as pilots of the 320th Fighter Test Squadron are assaying the value of the craft as an advanced trainer.

It is reported that the plane may eventually replace the familiar T-6.

Text of Report

The Senate Committee's report on the bill states:

PURPOSE OF THE BILL

"The purpose of this bill is to authorize the Navy to start a modernization program for the fleet in order to meet the requirements of present-day warfare.

EXPLANATION OF THE BILL

"The end of World War II found the Navy with ships of numerous types, most of which were designed and developed prior to the war, but the greater proportion of which were built during the war. The operations of the Navy during the war displayed tremendous progress in both equipment and tactics. Primarily this progress was highlighted by the development of the carrier task force, which successfully roamed the seas, destroying enemy fleets and neutralizing ground installations. It also brought to the fore the amphibious forces which developed overseas operations to the point where the ground soldier could be successfully landed against defended beaches and come to grips with hostile forces.

"Five years have passed since the end of hostilities, and there has been little or no construction or conversion of vessels designed to keep the Navy abreast of changes required by scientific and strategic developments. This bill is primarily intended to require the Navy to initiate a modest modernization program through the construction of new prototype vessels and the conversion of existing vessels. The majority of these vessels will be prototypes capable of being produced in large quantities in the event of need. Evidence introduced in closed hearings before the subcommittee clearly showed the necessity for the Navy to proceed on such a program. The total new construction authorized is approximately 50,000 tons, and the conversions will cover approximately 200,000 tons of ships. In no way does it affect the so-called 'super carrier' situation.

"The committee took note of the fact that the Navy presently has adequate authorizations for the construction of this new tonnage and amended the bill to require that the new construction authorized therein be charged against authorizations presently available to the Navy Department. The committee believes that the Navy should make a complete study of existing tonnage authorizations and report to the Congress no later than January 1, 1951. When this report is received, the Congress will determine how much of this existing authorization should be revoked.

"The committee also took notice of a recommendation of the Secretary of the Navy that the bill be amended by deleting a direction to the President of the United States to carry out the terms of this bill. In view of the fact that this is merely an authorization and not an appropriations bill, the committee concurred in the Secretary's recommendation. It would be futile to direct the President to carry on a program unless the appropriation bill granting the necessary funds carried a similar direction.

"The committee has purposely omitted from its report any reference to specific types of vessels, or their capabilities, which are contemplated by this program. This is done as a matter of national security even though such information that might be available from other sources. Suffice it to say that the committee studied the details of the proposed program and was impressed by the types of vessels contemplated thereunder. It believes that the solution to some of the pressing problems facing us in the event of a war will be at least partially solved by the prototype vessels authorized by this bill.

"The program authorized by this bill is that recommended by the Secretary of the Navy for fiscal year 1952. It is understood that it has the approval of the Secretary of Defense for planning purposes. The bill carries a monetary limitation of $350,000,000. It is contemplated that the expenditures under this authorization will be spread over a period of several years. The passage of this bill will not affect the budget for fiscal year 1951."

National War College

As war waged in Korea, General Omar N. Bradley, USA, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in a prepared address to graduates of the National War College at Ft. McNair, Washington, D. C., said on 26 June:

"If foreign policy is the day-by-day expression of a nation's instinct for survival, then the success or failure of that nation's policy is dependent upon its strength for self-protection."

Speaking to 113 members of the class, which commenced 29 Aug. 1949, General Bradley said the soldier's voice must be heard in top councils, but he cautioned that "it should be a quiet voice, speaking in wisdom based on sound knowledge of his profession, firm in its encouraging tone of keeping the peace."

He said that since World War II, a period he described as "the five years of our disillusionment," the Nation's Armed Forces "have provided us with the time to formulate and enact a foreign policy of economic and military rehabilitation for friendly nations."

General Bradley continued: "On the front lines of containment, in Germany, Austria, Trieste, Korea and Japan, our Army has upheld our national prestige. Our Air Force and the atomic bomb and our tremendous industrial potential have been deterrents to an outbreak of war. Our Navy has 'shown the flag' in every ocean, and supported every diplomatic program.

"Since World War II, in our five years of re-appraisal, we have confirmed the fact that our foreign policy is more than ever related to the capabilities and the limitations of our military power.

"The steadfast progress of our foreign policy has been made, in these past five years, with a growing realization that only strength provides a climate for progress, and that weakness invites failure.

"If our generous programs for peace and rehabilitation are to continue successfully, both the statesman and the soldier must understand the sinews of strength, as well as the skills of diplomacy."

Concluding, General Bradley said:

"Abroad in the world today, however, is an aggressive ideology which places its political faith and authority in the hands of military force. If our ideas of democracy could challenge communism in words alone, or in diplomatic negotiation, or even in economic and political contest, I know that the abundance of our way of life, and the Christian ideals behind it, would win out.

"But the close combination of communism with militant dictatorship demands that we include strong defense measures in our program of containment.

"In every area of the world, and with every resource at the command of free nations, we are dedicated to the defense of our way of life. To those who wish to base our policy for security on the inevitability of war, I can only advise that this is the pre-admission of failure.

"To the men graduating here today, may I urge that you exercise full conscience in your responsibilities for peace. The American people rightfully count on every military man to work with the statesman on a foreign policy of peace and freedom, eternally opposing war and its tyrannies.

"In the councils of state, the soldier must continue to make his contribution. But his voice must be a quiet one, and his words must be filled with wisdom. For only by such means can the military support of our foreign policy contribute most to our respected leadership of a free world."

Navy Officers to Sub School

Fifty-nine Naval officers have been ordered to report to the Submarine School, New London, Conn., on 5 July, and applications are being accepted for the class which convenes during the first week of January 1951.

Applications from volunteers for the six months course, the Navy said, are desired from officers in the grades of Lt. (jg) whose date of rank as such is 5 June 1949, or later, and Ensign whose date of rank is prior to 1 Jan. 1950. Requests for the training must reach the Bureau of Naval Personnel prior to 15 Aug.

Officers will not be ordered to the Submarine School until they have completed at least one year commissioned service as of 1 Jan. 1951. Candidates are selected upon the quality of their fitness-report records and educational background. All applicants should be qualified to stand officer-of-the-deck watches underway and must sign agreements not to resign during the course and to serve one year in the naval service following the successful completion of the submarine training.

Those ordered to the 5 July class are:

More Voice for the Navy

The present defense system gives undue emphasis to concepts and systems of warfare "unsympathetic to and unfamiliar with naval warfare." So Representative W. Sterling Cole, republican member of the House Armed Services Committee, told the annual convention of Navy Clubs meeting in Elmira, N. Y., on 24 June.

Representative Cole, an officer of the Naval Reserve, urged public support for legislation to require that the Chairmanship of the Joint Chiefs of Staff be rotated among the Armed Services and to add an additional naval-trained professional man to the Joint Chiefs of Staff organization.

Mr. Cole contended that an overbalance against the Navy begins in the National Security Council, which he said, is composed of the Chairman, President Truman, a former Army man, Secretary of State Acheson, who as vice chairman of the Hoover Commission favored a single Chief of Staff—"a position wholly foreign to persons with Navy experience"—Secretary of Defense Johnson whose background "is conditioned altogether toward Army concepts," and the Chairman of the National Security Resources Board, W. Stuart Symington.

Concluding, Mr. Cole offered the following suggestions:

"I suggest, first, that navy-minded people in the country, and all others interested in a balanced defense program, seek prompt and favorable action on legislation now pending in Congress to strengthen the organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"Moreover, the nation must watch with extreme care the strong tendency in the Defense Department to demand uniformity and common standards in each of the armed services; for, the end result of this practice is sure to be ultimate dilution of expertise in the Army, Navy, and Air Force to such an extent as to render each of them less efficient. A lifetime spent in the Army is not enough to learn all that must be known about land warfare. The same is true of the Navy and Air Force and Marine Corps. Yet, we are heavily embarked on a program designed to teach the Army about ships, the Navy about tanks, the Air Force about submarines. To the extent that the attention of our military leaders is taken away from their own fields to concentrate in the highly intricate and complex fields of the sister services, to that extent we will be denied, as a nation, the expertise we must have in each of the services.

"My next suggestion is that the country resist the powerful tendencies to develop and foster the growth of a national general staff despite the specific prohibitions against this in the Unification Act. The Joint Staff under the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the various boards and agencies of the Defense Department are, today functioning almost precisely as a general staff would; and the end product of that system is certain to be the virtual exclusion of Navy concepts from the basic defense decisions, as developed for the same reasons in Germany before the last war. This leads to the next suggestion which concerns a single Chief of Staff."

Admiral Berkey to Retire

The Navy confirmed reports this week that Vice Adm. Russell S. Berkey, Chief of Navy Information, will be retired soon for physical disability.

Former Commander of the Seventh Fleet in the Far East, Admiral Berkey was appointed to the top Navy public relations post less than four months ago. If he is still holding a Vice Admiral's billet at the time of his retirement he will be elevated on the retired list to four-star rank, the Bureau of Naval Personnel said.

Rear Adm. Hugh H. Goodwin, a member of the Navy General Board, was named acting Chief of Information. He had previously served as Chief of Staff of the Atlantic Fleet. Admiral Goodwin entered the Navy as an enlisted man during World War I and was later appointed to the Naval Academy. During the recent war he commanded an aircraft carrier in the Pacific, and served as Chief of Staff of Carrier Division Six and operations officer of the Philippine Sea Frontier.

Commands Air Station

Capt. Herbert Watson Taylor, Jr., USN, assumed command of the U. S. Naval Air Station, Anacostia, D. C., 30 June, relieving Capt. James H. McKay, USN, who is retiring after 31 years of service. Captain and Mrs. McKay and their daughter Marain Lee will reside in Norfolk, Va.

Transportation School

Eighty-six officers, selected to attend the Associate Transportation Company Officer Course at the Transportation School, were welcomed last week by Brig. Gen. Walter J. Muller, School Commandant and Post Commander of Fort Eustis, Va.

The guest speaker was Col. George E. Fingarson, Chief of the Transportation Section, Army Field Forces, Fort Monroe, Va. He stressed the importance of the Transportation Corps and outlined the functions of the Headquarters, Army Field Forces and specifically, the responsibilities of the Transportation Section.

2d Lts. Rene Cardona and Miguel Negron, Infantry officers from Puerto Rico, are members of the class.

Other officers attending are:

Group A—2d Lt. Jerry P. Armell, 2d Lt. William C. Bowden, 2d Lt. Amsbry H. Bergstrom, 2d Lt. Amsbry M. Brooks, 1st Lt. Lawrence D. Ballard, 1st Lt. John W. Clancy, 2d Lt. Louis P. Cox, 2d Lt. Exceed Design Loads

Overload flight tests of a C-97A Stratofreighter and a B-50 Superfortress have demonstrated the ability of these four-engine U. S. Air Force airplanes to carry more than their normal design loads, it was announced 26 June by USAF Air Materiel Command and the Boeing Airplane Company.

In one test, a C-97A took off at a gross weight of 174,500 pounds, carrying 96,500 pounds of useful load, it was revealed. Normal gross weight of the plane is 148,000 pounds. Empty weight of this C-97A was 78,000 pounds.

The B-50 was flown at a gross weight of 173,000 pounds during its overload test program, it was announced. Normal maximum gross weight is 164,000 pounds.

The tests, conducted as part of the routine proving of all new combat aircraft by the Flight Test Division of the Air Materiel Command, were flown by AMC crews with factory engineers and technicians assisting. The B-50 overload tests were conducted from Moses Lake AFB, Wash. The C-97A overload tests were made from Edwards AFB, Muroc, Calif.

Military Air Travel

Special travel desks to facilitate government civilian and military air travel have been set up by United Air Lines at all points on its 80-city system, J. M. Klapp, superintendent of government sales for the airline, reported this week.

Trained personnel familiar with government reservations and routing problems man the desks according to Mr. Klapp, who points out that a 10 per cent discount applies to all official military air travel.

Air Warrant Officers

Air Force officials expect to release next week the allocation of warrant officers in the four pay grades. The approximate breakdown will be as follows:

W-4	145
W-3	296
W-2	700
W-1	2100

This allocation, the Air Force said, includes officers holding letters of selection or appointment to warrant officer status but who are now serving on extended active duty.

The statutory grade of Chief Warrant Officer will be applied to W-4, W-3, and W-2 and the statutory grade WOJG will be applied to W-1. However, individuals serving as Chief Warrant Officers (W-2) prior to June 30 and who are not selected for W-4 or W-3 will remain in W-2 and will not be demoted.

Air Reserve Pay

Organized Reserve Units of the Air Force may now participate in 48 drill-pay periods per year, provided they meet the following minimum requirements.

	Officer	Airman
	Strength	Strength
3 months after activation	35	22½
6 "	50	35
9 "	65	47½
1 year	80	60
18 months	85	65
2 years	90	70

Heretofore, Air Force Corollary Units had to reach the 80-60 status and AFRTCs had to reach an 80-80 status to be placed on full 48 drill-pay status.

Corollary Units and AFRTCs, however, were permitted formerly to receive pay for 24 drill periods, even though under-strength. Now these units will be on full pay status or no pay at all.

Marines Retire

Eight veteran Marine officers were retired from the Marine Corps this week.

Maj. Gen. Thomas E. Watson, whose retirement becomes effective today, was advanced on the retired list to the rank of Lieutenant General. He had formerly held three-star rank while serving as Commanding General of the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific. He was retired for physical disability.

Brig. Gen. Dudley S. Brown, who had completed 30 years' service, was retired in the rank of Major General. His last assignment was as Deputy Commandant of the Marine Corps Schools at Quantico, Va.

Six other officers, Colonels James L. Denham, John Kaluf, Paul A. Lesser, Leo Sullivan, and Leland S. Swindler, were advanced to the rank of Brigadier General. All were retired on 30 June after completing 30 years' service.

Col. Homer C. Murray retired today after completing 20 years' service in the Marine Corps.

Navy Captains Retire

Two Navy captains were given a farewell luncheon by members of the Board of Review, Discharges and Dismissals on 27 June, at the Naval Gun Factory Officers' Club, Washington, D. C., in honor of their retirement from the naval service. They are Capt. Paul Cassard, USN, President of the Board of Review, whose successor is Rear Adm. Robert P. McConnell, USN, and Capt. George L. Harris, USN, Secretary of the Panel. Both were previously retired but continued to serve on active duty in the Navy Department.

Captain Cassard, who was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1913, was retired 30 June. His home is in the Ontario Apartments, Washington, D. C.

A graduate of the Naval Academy in 1917, Captain Harris will retire on 30 Aug. He now lives at 1600 East-West Highway, Silver Spring, Md.

Permanent Air Colonels

The Air Force expects to release shortly—probably next week—the names of officers selected for permanent promotion to the rank of colonel. The list is expected to reach the President soon for transmittal to the Senate for confirmation.
